Coffin Borne In Splendor To Capitol Rotunda . . .

LBJ Eulogized As Man With Ambition For U.S.

Washington (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson returned in death Wednesday to a capital preparing for the peace he sought so long.

And, as his beloved Lady Bird stood composed beside his successor in the White House, the 38th President of the United States was eulogized as a man whose "ambition for himself was nothing compared to his ambition for America."

Johnson's flag-draped coffin was borne in stately military splendor from near the White House to the Capitol—the twin edifices of his power for more than 30 years—to lie in state in the great Rotunda as eight other Presidents had before him.

Thousands Watch

Thousands lined the procession route down Constitution Avenue and thousands waited to file past the black-draped catafalque of Lincoln's time. The former president will be buried in Texas Thursday after funeral services in Washington.

"He gave me one guiding principle," said J. J. Pickle, the congressman now representing Johnson's old district in Texas. "He said 'congressman, when you vote, vote for the people.' This was the same principle that guided Lyndon Johnson."

And Dean Rusk, his secretary of state, said

Johnson cannot be portrayed in a few strokes of a brush.

"As for me, I would begin with his deep compassion for his fellow man."

Rusk said that a thousand years ago, Johnson might have been known as "Lyndon the Liberator."

A Demanding Man

"Many have said Lyndon Johnson was demanding on his colleagues and his personal staff," Rusk said. "Indeed he was; and demanding upon the Congress and American people and many a foreign leader as well. But he was most demanding on himself."

There was so much to do and there was so little time in which to get it done."

Rusk added: "As time passes, the world will increasingly acknowledge that the 'everything' that was in him was a very great deal and that men and women all over the earth are forever in his debt."

But the most moving tributes came from the silent attention given the funeral cortege by the crowds lining the route to the Capitol—from the Washington Monument, past two Smithsonian Institution buildings and the National Gallery of Art.

President Nixon, who only hours earlier had announced the initialing of a peace agreement with North Vietnam, rode in the motorcade behind the horse-drawn caisson. At the Capitol, he took Mrs. Johnson's arm and escorted her to the solemn rite.

The Johnson daughters, Lynda Bird and Luci, their husbands and two of the four Johnson grandchildren followed. They smiled as they acknowledged the condolences of the great and near great.

By her own request, Mrs. Johnson lingered after the ceremony, thanking those closest to the former president.

It was in the Capitol—as an aide to a congressman—that Johnson started his rise to power in 1931. He had served as a congressman from 1937 and as a senator from 1949 until he became vice president in 1961 and president a thousand days later.

MOMENT OF SORROW . . . President Nixon consoles Lady Bird Johnson.

Appropriations Committee Backs Exon Pay Proposal

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon's proposed pay plan for state employees received vocal support Wednesday from eight members of the Legislative Appropriations Committee conditioned on four points.

Those tentative stipulations which were reached in a general discussion without a vote were:

—that merit raises can be made above normal ceilings for employees who have done "outstanding" work. Such a provision is included in Exon's proposal as steps 6 and 7 in the pay scale.

—That the state personnel system, which covers approximately 15,000 state employees, merge with the Nebraska merit system, which involves approximately 2,000 employees in state agencies receiving federal funds for salaries. The administration is currently considering joining the two systems.

—that a probationary period for the first 6 months on the job be required of all employees.

—that the state personnel department be taken from under the governor's administrative control and be made independent.

At least one senator, though, went along with the plan if only to avoid any criticism of the plan being placed on the Legislature's shoulders.

Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney said, "No doubt we need a personnel plan."

"But since the governor recommended this particular plan, I think we ought to give it to him and let him eat it."

"If we change it, then we get the blame. I'm tired of taking the blame."

The pay plan basically provides state employees with an average 6.32% annual wage raise costing taxpayers an estimated $6.2 million. It is intended to bring a degree of uniformity in pay scales to employees of different agencies who do essentially the same work but are not paid comparably.

The pay plan's impact on salaries varies according to salary with those making under $7,000 per year scheduled to receive an 8.9% raise while those earning over $25,000 would get a .9% raise. The governor had originally estimated that the average rise would be 2.69%.

"We're going to pay a little more temporarily," Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell conceded, "but we're going to get better quality work. Hopefully, state government will no longer be a training school for private industry."

Library services have been a source of student discontent for several years.

Student Senate Orders Library System Study

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln student senate, after a committee study of campus library services, Wednesday voted to hire its own management firm to study the library system.

The senate, governing body of the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN), voted to allocate $2,400 from its contingency fund to hire the consultant.

ASUN President Bruce Beecher said the senate has contacted several firms about the project and will ask for bids.

Beecher said the unprecedented move was the result of student dissatisfaction over the UNL library services.

The study committee, as a part of its review, surveyed students and found "a great percentage of students said there is definitely a problem," said Beecher.

The committee also gave nine students different lists of 10 books randomly selected and said it found that an average of three or four of the books could be found in two hours of searching.

The consulting report, which the senate hopes to have completed by March 1, will survey library management and other matters such as book lending policies and branch library operations, said Beecher.

"We wanted to do something positive," said Beecher. "We're not out for Heussman's neck."

His reference was to John Heussman director of UNL libraries.

The consultants' study, which will be financed with the student fee funds, will be made available to students, the public, the university administration, the library, the Board of Regents and the Legislature, said Beecher.

He said that although the senate committee had hoped to do such a study itself, it found in discussions with Heussman and the faculty senate library committee that the problems were so complex as to warrant seeking professional services.

Beecher said he had reason to believe the consultants will have the cooperation of the university administration and the library itself.

Library services have been a source of student discontent for several years.

Students Request Peace Celebration

The student senate at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Wednesday asked UNL Chancellor James Zumberge to cancel classes Monday afternoon for a campus celebration on the university's "commitment to peace."

The senate, governing body of the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN), also asked faculty members and administrators to join students in planning the afternoon observance.

Beecher said he will contact Zumberge to ask his support for the event, plans for which were prompted by President Nixon's announcement of a Vietnam ceasefire.

On another matter, the senate also heard a report saying that a majority of students surveyed recently favor opening the campus to possession of alcoholic beverages in dorm and residence facility rooms.

Beecher said the report will be shared with all organizations on the campus, and eventually taken to the Board of Regents.

'Peace That Heals' Seen By Kissinger

Washington (AP) — The United States and Hanoi Wednesday outlined a fragile settlement that Henry A. Kissinger said could bring "a peace that heals," first to Vietnam, then to all Indochina.

In simultaneous news conferences — presidential aide Kissinger in Washington and North Vietnamese special adviser Le Duc Tho in Paris — both sides disclosed details of the agreement announced Tuesday night.

Caution, No Surprises

Kissinger provided no surprises, although he did say the return of American prisoners from North Vietnam would begin by mid-February, and his hour and a half presentation was full of caution.

"Whether this agreement brings a lasting peace or not," he said, "depends not only upon its provisions but also on the spirit in which it is implemented."

The administration determination to keep its emotions from soaring into euphoria was also evident in President Nixon's first statement since he announced the agreement. "We've got our prisoners coming back," he told congressional leaders, and "a peace, however fragile, which we have hopes will endure."

According to the full 12-page agreement and the four accompanying explanatory and technical documents, the settlement will be signed in three different ceremonies Saturday in Paris.

Within 15 days of the signing of the first American POW will be picked up in Hanoi by American personnel in American planes, with the entire contingent of 587 U.S. captives — 473 in North Vietnam, 100 in the South and 6 in Laos — to be released at about — two week intervals for two months. The withdrawal of the last 24,000 American troops from South Vietnam will begin and continue at a similar rate.

Limited To Vietnam

The ceasefire initially will be limited to Vietnam, because of the complexities in the other two Indochina nations.

But Kissinger added that "it is our firm expectation that within a short period of time there will be a formal ceasefire in Laos."

As to Cambodia, the presidential adviser said "it is our expectation that a de facto ceasefire will come into being over a period of time relevant to the execution of this agreement."

Kissinger told a national broadcast and television audience watching his news conference that "no one side got all it wanted."

But he claimed the United States obtained most of its essential demands, particularly concerning the right of political self-determination for the South.

Among the settlement's basic provisions:

—Poland, Indonesia, Canada and Hungary will provide 1,160 men to supervise the cease-fire and elections, while other commissions representing the various parties will operate as well.

—An international conference including the Vietnamese elements, the United States, Soviet Union and China will be held before the end of February to guarantee the agreement. This conference also will involve UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

For the entire period since the first negotiating session in Paris four years ago Thursday, Kissinger said, any chance for a settlement "founded on the insistence of the North Vietnamese that a political victory be handed to them" by demanding acceptance of a coalition government as a precondition to negotiation on other issues.

"It was not until Oct. 8 of this year that the North Vietnamese ever agreed to separate" the political and military issues, he said, and from then on the negotiations moved relatively fast.

Deadline Explained

In closer terms, Kissinger explained the deadline that developed between his Oct. 26 announcement that "peace is at hand," and the breakdown of the negotiations on Dec. 16.

"We could not find a formula to take into account the conflicting views with respect to the signing" an agreement.

"There were disagreements with respect to the DMZ and with the associated aspects of what identity South Vietnam was to have in the agreement."

All this changed the day after the talks resumed, Jan. 8, Kissinger said, and "it became apparent both sides were determined to make a serious effort to break the deadlock."

Why did the North Vietnamese become reconcilable this month, because of the 12 days of heavy bombing? Kissinger was asked.

"I will say," he answered, "that there was a deadlock which was described in the middle of December, and there was a rapid movement when negotiations resumed . . . these facts have to be analyzed by each person for himself."

Fluoridation Bill Fight Inevitable

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
(Fourth of a Series)

A bill sponsored by the Nebraska Dental Association (NDA) to require the fluoridation of all city and village water supplies in the state could become one of the most controversial issues before the 1973 Legislature.

Opposition is routinely anticipated by the NDA, an active supporter of community fluoridation measures for over 20 years. For the NDA, the doubt and fear which stalk fluoridation wherever it is proposed have become an inevitable, if ironic, fact of life.

Ironie because, in the overwhelming consensus of professional public health opinion, fluoridation is a subject about which no scientific controversy has existed for years. In the words of Dr. Nicholas C. Leone, chief of medical investigation for the National Institute of Dental Research, "We know without question or doubt, that one part per million fluoride in a water supply is absolutely safe, is beneficial, and is not productive of any undesirable systematic effect in man."

Hence the NDA's new legislative approach, which it views as a logical extension of its work on the local level.

"Fluoridation is just like taxes," suggests Dr. Bernard Moran of Lincoln, president of the NDA and a longtime fluoridation advocate. "We get a lot of good from them, but if they were put to a vote, we wouldn't vote for them, would we?"

"Fear affects the apathetic and the uninformed," said Dr. Moran. "All they (opponents) have to say is it might cause softening of bones, or cancer, or heart disease, and they've created just a shadow of a doubt."

"One problem with this is the expense of educating people all over the state," said Dr. F. A. Pierson Jr. of Lincoln, the NDA's legislative chairman. "The people in small towns are often the ones who are left out in dental health. They're going to benefit most from fluoridation, but you don't find public health authorities in every little town. We have to go around and fight misinformation in each village."

Dr. Pierson is well aware that the legislative route won't be without opposition, either, and expects a "vigorous and vociferous" campaign waged by "small but loud groups." But, he added, "it should be easier to try to inform 49 men in public health matters than to go to every little village and town."

DR. MORAN . . . 'fluoridation is like taxes.'

"A major bone of contention in the Legislature is likely to be the issue of local control — the only new issue, all others having been argued endlessly in local campaigns for nearly 20 years."

Similarly, much of the local opposition might be expected to come from towns like Albion, Ralston, Beatrice, York and Hastings, where the issue has been defeated — often repeatedly — at the polls.

"I feel sorry for the people who have to take it just because there were more people in their town who wanted it," said Mrs. Dale Paschall of Hastings. There fluoridation is a dead issue, having been defeated twice at the polls by 2-to-1 margin.

"But there are also quite a few towns who have voted against it by referendum," Mrs. Paschall objected. "I don't think the state should then impose it on them. That's pretty sneaky, to try to go over the heads of the people concerned."

"These people who oppose it in Hastings really have a foothold here," noted Hastings Mayor D. W. "Monte" Malouf, himself a believer in fluoridation. "I would imagine as the years go along, the opposition will lessen — for instance if Grand Island and Kearney would accept it, I think it would have an influence."

Meanwhile, Dr. Moran points out, thousands of children in Hastings and other towns will have missed out on the lifetime benefits of fluoridation, which are established only by regular ingestion during the first nine years of life.

"More people would benefit sooner by taking this approach," said Dr. Moran.

"Fluoridation is like anything else in health," adds Dr. Mrs. Muffley, chief of dental health for the State Health Department.

"It shouldn't be voted on in the first place."

"Certain chemicals are added to water for a variety of reasons on professional recommendation, and that's the way it should be," Dr. Muffley declared. "Only one requires a vote of the people, and that's when they add a minute quantity of the fluoride ion."

Opposition to the statewide proposal is certain to emerge, Muffley said. "It's already in the offing. It's usually quite vociferous and it has been effective. All they have to do is create doubt and fear."

U.S. Expects Cease-Fire In Laos, Cambodia

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — Henry A. Kissinger said Wednesday the United States had a "firm expectation" that the Vietnam cease-fire would soon extend to Cambodia and Laos. Kissinger outlined the details of the accord and forcefully presented the administration's argument that it had secured a "firm and just" settlement which could not have been achieved four years ago. (More on Page 1.)

Tho Calls It 'Great Victory'

Paris — Le Duc Tho, Hanoi's chief negotiator, called the agreement a "great victory," and said the final accord was "basically" the same as the draft agreement reached in October. Gesturing in triumph as he opened a news conference in Paris, Tho said, "It is a moment of joy." (More on Page 2.)

Full Text Covers Many Areas

Washington — The full text of the agreement to be signed and take effect Saturday covers such areas as cease-fire, troop withdrawals, and the postwar government of South Vietnam. It calls for the return of American prisoners of war to begin before mid-February and to be completed by the end of March. The provisions for the cease-fire call for a complex series of truce supervisory teams and no-trespass zones. The United States is to withdraw its last troops from South Vietnam within 60 days. North Vietnam will be permitted to retain its estimated 145,000 troops in the South, but has agreed to send no replacements. The political future of South Vietnam will rest in part on a tripartite council made up of the Saigon regime, neutralists and the Provisional Revolutionary Government, which will be charged with organizing elections and settling all internal political matters. (More on Page 2.)

Foreign Trade In Deficit

Washington — Last year, for only the second time in this century, the United States showed a deficit in foreign trade. (More on Page 3.)

Boston Bias Charged

Washington — The Justice Department charged that blacks and other minorities have been discriminated against in filling vacancies in the Boston Fire Department. In a civil suit filed in federal court, the government asked for an injunction against the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission to end the alleged discrimination.

Hanoi's Tho Says Pact 'Great Victory'

Paris (AP) — Hanoi's chief peace negotiator, Le Duc Tho, described the Vietnam peace agreement as a "great victory for the Vietnamese people" Wednesday and declared it contains no secret or tactical commitment to withdraw North Vietnamese troops from the South.

Visibly in a triumphant mood, the silver-haired Tho told a news conference that Henry A. Kissinger tried for years but failed to wring such a commitment out of North Vietnam.

It was one of the basic peace conditions long posed by President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

"We completely rejected the allegation concerning the so-called North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam because politically and legally this allegation is pointless," Tho said, grinning broadly under the glare of television lights.

"Furthermore, the American side completely dropped this proposal. Therefore, you will not find a single word in the agreement concerning the presence of so-called North Vietnamese troops."

Hanoi has throughout the Vietnam conflict refused to formally acknowledge the presence of its soldiers in South Vietnam.

Conclusion of the cease-fire agreement, Tho declared, "crowns the Vietnamese people's 13 years of valiant struggle against American imperialism at the cost of innumerable sacrifices and deprivations."

As he spoke, the foreign ministers of the Saigon government and its rival, the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government, told newsmen elsewhere in Paris that the agreement failed to settle any of the political problems of South Vietnam.

Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam said Saigon regarded the agreement as "a cease fire only," and Communist good will to move on to a political settlement still had to be tested.

Viet Cong Foreign Minister Nguyen Thi Binh conferred with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and later echoed Tho in describing the agreement as a "great victory in the Vietnamese people's struggle for independence, peace and freedom."

Mrs. Binh told newsmen the Viet Cong "is ready to observe the agreement strictly, but the statements of Mr. Nguyen Van Thieu do not disclose a similar intention."

Tho said President Nixon's December bombing offensive against the North Vietnamese heartland "failed completely" and only delayed the negotiations.

Lam, however, said the new text contained several improvements on the October draft rejected by Thieu.

World News

"The term government structure no longer figures in the references to the National Council of Reconciliation and Concord," the Saigon foreign minister declared. "It is also clear that the parties must respect the demarcation line at the 17th parallel and there is also no mention in the text of the provisional revolutionary government."

Efforts Redoubled To Grab Land

Saigon (AP) — The warring sides in South Vietnam appeared to be redoubling their efforts Wednesday to gain footholds for the cease-fire and the impending political struggle that President Nguyen Van Thieu warned will be as difficult and dangerous as the war.

Increased battlefield action and a variety of other indicators showed the Communist command moving to consolidate its position in areas now contested or controlled by its troops, allied officials said.

The Saigon government was reported planning a security crackdown for the weekend before the cease-fire which begins officially at 8 a.m. Sunday Saigon time. That is 6 p.m. CST Saturday.

One report from a senior government source said a two-day curfew will be imposed in the countryside and smaller cities in contested areas to strengthen the government's control and head off last-minute armed activity by the North Vietnamese and local guerrilla forces.

In a first stage of the crackdown, Saigon radio announced a tightening of the regular 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew hours in the Saigon area, listing heavy fines for violations and saying offending

South Vietnamese servicemen would be subject to "maximum disciplinary action."

In a 45-minute cease-fire address to the nation, Thieu declared that "the Communists do not have good will or peace. Therefore, as I have frequently told you, no agreement will provide a 100% guarantee for peace and no international body may be considered to be able to give us a 100% guarantee for peace."

He added that "even after we have defeated the Communists militarily, it is still possible that we may lose politically."

Vietnam Accord's Highlights

Washington (AP) — Here are the highlights of the basic Vietnam agreement that will be signed Saturday in Paris:

Military provisions:

An internationally supervised cease-fire will go into effect at 6 p.m. CST Saturday, Jan. 27. The cease-fire will apply in both North and South Vietnam.

Upon the cease-fire going into effect, the United States will begin withdrawal of all its forces and military personnel from South Vietnam to be completed within 60 days.

Concurrently with the American withdrawal the North Vietnamese and its allies will begin the release of all American servicemen and civilians captured throughout Indochina. There will be the "fullest possible accounting for missing in action."

The infiltration of troops and war supplies into South Vietnam is banned. The government of South Vietnam, however, has the right to unlimited military replacement and.

All sides pledge respect for the Demilitarized Zone at the 17th Parallel. The goal of reunification of North and South Vietnam is recognized but will be achieved only through negotiation between the two Vietnamese.

There is no specific mention of North Vietnamese troops in the South but both sides agree to the reduction and demobilization of Communist and government forces in the South.

All foreign troops will be withdrawn from Laos and Cambodia and there is a ban on use of base areas in those two nations for the purpose of attacking or threatening the security of South Vietnam.

Political provisions: The United States and North Vietnam agree that the South Vietnamese people have a right to self-determination. The government of the Republic of Vietnam in Saigon continues in existence with its current leadership intact and unchanged.

The Saigon government continues the right to unlimited economic aid.

A nongovernmental National Council of Reconciliation and Concord will be formed to organize elections and to promote implementation of the agreement.

The council will be composed of elements from the Viet Cong, otherwise known as the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, neutralists and the current South Vietnamese government. The council also will make all decisions on the basis of unanimity.

Control and supervision: An international commission composed of Canada, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia will supervise the cease-fire and the elections. The commission will be composed of 1,160.

An international conference including both the Vietnamese

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird announced Wednesday night the suspension of "virtually all personnel movements to Vietnam" by the Army, Air Force and Navy.

In a statement, the Pentagon said individual soldiers on leave with orders for Vietnam are to report to the nearest Army installation for instructions or call headquarters in Washington.

About 2,000 Army men are affected by the suspension. Air Force personnel who have departed their home base on leave en route to Vietnam will be notified at their leave address by the Air Force and given new instructions, the Pentagon said.

Navy personnel were instructed to contact the nearest Navy installation for new orders.

nations, the United States, the Soviet Union and mainland China will be convened within 30 days to guarantee the agreement.

In addition, joint military commissions made up of the Vietnamese parties will be organized to implement other provisions of the agreement.

Laos and Cambodia: The independence, sovereignty, unity, territorial integrity and neutrality of Cambodia and Laos will be respected. The Geneva agreements of 1954 and 1962 are reaffirmed.

The infiltration of troops and war supplies into Cambodia and Laos are prohibited as is the use of bases in those countries to encroach upon the sovereignty and security of one another and of other nations.

All foreign troops are to be withdrawn from Laos and Cambodia.

Reconstruction: The United States will participate in postwar reconstruction efforts throughout Indochina, including North Vietnam.

The ending of the war is to bring a new basis for U.S. relations with North Vietnam.

Six-Month
Deficit Totals
$12.5 Billion

Washington (AP) — The Federal government ran a $12.5 billion deficit in its operations in the first six months of the current fiscal year, the Treasury Department reported Wednesday.

The figure is exactly half the estimated deficit for the entire fiscal year, assuming that the Nixon administration will be able to hold spending to a total of $250 billion.

The Treasury said the government took in $106 billion from July through December and spent $118.5 billion. In December it ran up a deficit of $750 million

Senate Won't Get Accord, But Mansfield Doesn't Care

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon does not intend to submit the Vietnam peace agreement to the Senate as a treaty for its advice and consent, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, said Wednesday.

But he added "I'm so relieved, I don't care what the agreement is called."

"Unlike a treaty between the United States and another country which must be submitted to the Senate for approval, an executive agreement does not require legislative ratification."

Nixon briefed about 25 congressional leaders at the White House Wednesday in an emotional, two-hour and 20-minute session at the end of which Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said "there wasn't a dry eye in the house."

Nixon told the leaders "thank God for those who stood thank God for those who gave their lives, thank God for those who suffered and for them all. We're damn proud of them."

Now Sullens wants to get out of the chicken raising trade and go to college.

U.S. Trade Deficit Up Again In '72

Washington (AP) — The nation's trade deficit soared to a record $6.5 billion in 1972, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

The department reported that the value of imports exceeded exports by $563.2 million in December continuing the long string of trade deficits that began in 1972.

The deficit last year easily topped the 1971 red ink in trade figures. In 1971 the nation had a $2-billion deficit the first of this century.

The department blamed the 1972 deterioration on the economic recovery in the United States which made it the world's best market for selling goods.

In addition it said the dollar devaluation at the end of 1971 caused an immediate increase in prices of foreign imports without a reduction in the volume of foreign goods flowing into this country.

ed those who supported him. Of those who differed, Nixon said "I respect them."

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, long a critic of Nixon's Vietnam policy, commented "It's later than I hoped, but it's good."

Scott said he would propose that church bells be rung around the country Saturday when the peace agreement is signed "as an act of reconciliation among all the people."

"I would hope that those who criticized the President would be now conciliatory to him," he added.

Better Relations
Mansfield predicted the settlement would better Nixon's relations with Congress "in the most vital area of division and dissent but the domestic problems will remain."

He described the mood at the White House meeting as "solemn, relieved, thankful and the most common expression was 'at last.'"

Scott also quoted Nixon as saying that "there are problems" but added "it would be extremely helpful, while being honest, not to consult our fears, but our belief that this is peace with honor."

Nixon added "by pursuing the course, we've got our POW's coming back, a peace, however fragile, which we have hopes will endure."

We could have taken another course, but I recall a POW wife who kept saying 'We didn't fight this war for our prisoners. Don't let our people die for nothing. Don't go out until we get peace.'

CAN'T REMEMBER DAD

Debbie Christian, 13, can't remember her father, a U.S. Navy flier who has been a prisoner of war for more than six years. She is the daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Mike Christian, of Virginia Beach, Va. She wipes her eyes as she hears President Richard Nixon announce peace accord for Vietnam.

Daley urged all churches to conduct services of thanksgiving at 8 p.m. Saturday and asked businessmen and industrialists to join in an intensive program to find jobs for Vietnam veterans.

Barbara Davis, who works in a doughnut shop at Montgomery, Ala., said "it's nice if it comes." On a Boston street, Jill Anderson said: "I'll believe it when I see it. . . we'll see on Saturday."

At Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver, Duffy Deweiler, 26, who was injured by shrapnel in the 1970 Cambodian incursion, said: "I don't know how it can be an honorable peace. I don't think the war had any honor in it and there won't be peace. The whole country lost."

At the University of Kansas, Tony Kovach, a student, said: "That's good. I got a low draft number and now I won't get drafted."

the longest-held American POW in North Vietnam (Lt. Everett Alvarez Jr., who was shot down in his fighter plane in 1964), said she could "finally see the light to McNamara's long, long tunnel." But her daughter, Della, said: "With our luck, he'll be one of the last to be released."

Peace in Vietnam may or may not mean the end to a five-year ordeal for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Estes Sr. of Williamston, Mich. They said they wonder whether there will be "a full accounting of all the missing in action" that will tell them whether their Navy Lieutenant son, Walter Jr., is dead or alive.

There was a smattering of plans for organized observances.

Peace Brings No National Holiday

By United Press International
Americans rejoiced Wednesday, but with few visible signs of joy at the prospect that the nation's travail over Vietnam was ending.

There was no national holiday, no cheering millions surging through city streets, no wild celebrations on college campuses.

Doves and hawks, men and women, veterans and the families of prisoners of war voiced an almost universal thank God it's finally over at the announcement that a cease-fire will end America's longest and most unpopular war.

But many—like Cincinnati salesman Deubell—were distressed the war will continue until 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

Leaves 3 Days

That leaves three days in which people could be killed over there, Deubell said.

World Leaders Rejoice Over Peace

By United Press International
World leaders rejoiced and expressed relief Wednesday over the announcement of a cease-fire agreement to end the Vietnam war, but their comments were tempered by fears the peace might not last.

At the Vatican Pope Paul VI said he joined all who rejoiced about the peace agreement in Vietnam and he appealed for the armistice to be transformed into a "true peace."

Swedish Premier Olof Palme's government greeted the Vietnam settlement with "great relief and satisfaction" but Foreign Minister Krister Wickman said he doubted it would bring enduring peace to South Vietnam.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai was quoted as saying a cease-fire in Vietnam will not immediately bring a peace in the Indochina region.

Chou was quoted to the Japanese press as saying in Peking last Saturday the situation in Southeast Asia will remain "fluid" because the United States continues to keep its bases in the Philippines and Thailand.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, a staunch critic of American military action in Vietnam, praised the United States and North Vietnam for their persistent efforts to reach a settlement and said "I am naturally glad if it is all over."

The Swiss government welcomed the Vietnam cease-fire and said it stands ready to help in the reconstruction of destroyed areas.

In Moscow the first Russian official to comment on the peace agreement said it represented a great victory for the Soviet Union and other Communist nations who aided the Hanoi effort, the Tass News Agency said.

Andrei P. Kirilenko, a member of the Politburo of the Communist Party Central Committee said "This will be a great victory of the Vietnamese people in their hard and long-fought struggle for freedom, independence and peace."

Widow Told To Take Job, Leave Willie

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question — "I'm a widow, 52, a soft goods buyer for a department store and am in love with a married man. His wife knows what's going on and has offered him a divorce. But he wants to wait until both his daughters are married, even though only one is engaged so far. At my age I don't expect another chance at remarriage and feel I should stick this out. I've been offered a wonderful job in the next state, but to take it will mean losing touch with Willie. I'm so confused. What should I do?"

Answer: — Take the job and tell Willie goodbye. Looks like he's just keeping you around as a pleasant diversion. If he really wanted to wed you, he'd have grabbed his wife's offer of a divorce and to heck with when the girls are married if it's true love he'll find a way to keep in touch wherever you go. Widows are wiser women. Wonderful jobs than waiting for wedded males to slip them a ring.

Question: "We'd always been lucky in never having been robbed. But last week my wife came home from shopping, parked the car, went into the house and found a man in the kitchen ready to leave with two suitcases full of clothing, silverware, etc. When he saw my wife he took the suitcases, got in his car and drove up the street. My wife was so mad she got in the car and chased him for 20 blocks before she lost him in the traffic. Don't you agree this was foolish of her?"

Answer: — Yes, she'd have been smarter to have gotten a full description of the robber's car and then spent those minutes phoning the police. But when people get frightened or angry it's difficult to think rationally. One wonders what your wife would have done had she overtaken his car? He could well have been armed and dangerous.

Question: — "I'm a widow, 71, who has lived in this community 10 years. My husband left me nothing but debts and if it hadn't been for Social Security I'd have starved. Until last spring I was just a drab old lady with no personality and largely ignored by everyone. But last May my sister in Seattle passed on and to my amazement left me $50,000 and some business property that gives me an income of over $500 monthly. Well, the story got into the local papers and they dubbed me a senior Cinderella. Now people talk to me on the street, and tell me I look wonderful. Does money really improve one's personality?"

Answer: — No, but it enhances one's image and stimulates human interest. It also gives the individual a sense of confidence and poise that's often lacking when the cupboard is bare. As the old Jewish saying goes, "A person with money is handsome, witty, and sings pretty good too."

Question: — "I'm 59 and have suddenly awakened to the fact that my company will retire me in six years. We own our own home but have saved very little and my pension and Social Security will total less than half my present income of $700 monthly. What can we do at this late date?"

Answer: — Start cutting all unnecessary expenses and stash away as much of your paycheck as you can. Also start thinking about work you might do, new areas where you might launch, when you retire. Maybe your wife should be seeking some kind of employment to bring in more money.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Thursday

Of all signs, Aquarius is the one who lives for the moment. Natives of this zodiacal sign react on impulse, strive to "savor" experience, absorb awareness, long for change, are progressive, expect to perceive future things. The Aquarian does what comes naturally. This does not mean Aquarius is always wise or mature. But it does mean these persons are basically true to themselves. For better or worse, says Aquarius, this is me and that's the way it is.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Concern with the hidden or occult surfaces. They are not likely to be satisfied with status quo. Key is to investigate, to probe for answers. Source material is unorthodox. Money affecting matter, partner's involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Public relations improve. More persons express appreciation for your efforts. Social interaction is received. Accept it. Don't push or force. One close to you has surprise. If receptive, you will be gratified.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Steady pace brings satisfaction. Reward you gain if thorough. Specifically your work methods, your procedures bear fruit. Key is to know progress is being made. Don't feel there must be fireworks. Sincerity and dedication are valuable commodities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Good lunar aspect now coincides with creative change. Special relationship and recognition from peers. Your ideas, style come across. Intensified relationship, much in picture. Don't run from emotions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Changes occur within family. Keep antennas up. To detect signal. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Basic issues, domestic. Don't neglect one who wants to tell you something. Be attentive. Sympathetic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to decide between course which seems rough and one which is tough. There is apparently no easy way. But once you get started, forward motion carries you to goal. P-sces in picture. Short trip probably is necessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Accent is on money. Personal possessions how to get most from assets. Capricorn is likely to be in picture. Utilize lessons learned in recent past. You have allies in high positions. Know it and act like you are aware of it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-November 21) Cy-cle high and you gain added perception. Find better ways to distribute product. Get across to key persons in personal area. Love blossoms. You feel more complete. Heightened individuality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Face what you hear. By so doing, you actually overcome obstacle. Key now is to maintain independent stance. By going behind scenes you obtain required data. Know it and proceed in direct manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Accent now is on friends, hopes, special aspirations. Family member helps you attain what is required. Be receptive. If you don't know, ask. Others now want to aid. But you must make initial gesture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Go directly to source. Move in different direction. Accent ability to be versatile. You are not stuck with one method. Experiment. Expand horizons. Deal with Spiritarian. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Leave details for another time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Emphasis is on study, journeys, communications from a distance. You are able to get through to person willing to show you the key to progress. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons figure prominently.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you tend to be introspective. You usually choose quality. You now are embarking on new project with ultimate success indicated in September. Leo person will play important role. You are an original thinker. This year many of your views will be vindicated.

The Week's Health Tip

Quick and proper action could save the life of someone who is choking, says the Nebraska Medical Association.

If an infant is choking from something in the throat, hold the baby by the ankles, letting the head hang straight down. Open the baby's mouth, pull the tongue forward and let the obstruction fall out.

If the choking victim is a small child, hold the victim over your leg and give several sharp pats between the shoulder blades. For an adult place the victim on the side of the body with the head lower than the body and apply several sharp blows between the shoulder blades.

Remember to clear the victim's throat, pull the tongue forward and start mouth-to-mouth breathing if the victim has trouble breathing.

City-County Planning Commission Nixes 36th, Pioneers Blvd. Zone Change

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City-County Planning Commission Wednesday denied a zoning change for a community unit plan at 36th and Pioneers Blvd. which has come under fire from area residents.

Austin Realty Co. is proposing to develop the 14-acre tract into 76 dwelling units composed of single family houses, duplexes, and townhouses.

The change of zone from A-1 Single to A-2 Single Family was opposed by area property owners who contended the increased density would place an additional burden on the schools, sanitary sewer system and traffic in that neighborhood.

The developer contended that the site would be difficult to develop due to its location between Hwy. 2 and Pioneers Blvd. and that the proposed plan was appropriate.

The commission also recommended denial of a special permit to construct the community unit plan and a preliminary plat of the area.

In other action the commission recommended partial approval of a plan to develop a motel-restaurant-service station complex at the intersection of NW 48th and West O, adjacent to Interstate 80.

Sterling Flott is requesting a zoning change from A-1

Rural to H-2 Highway Commercial on the northeast and southeast corners of the intersection. A total of 63 acres is involved.

Planning Director Doug Brogren recommended denial of the application, contending the plan would be a continuation of "urban sprawl" along West O.

If the zoning change is approved, he said, a total of 143 acres in that immediate area would be zoned for urban development.

The commission agreed in part with Brogren—denying the change in zone for the northeast corner, while recommending the zoning change be approved for H-S

Highway Service on the southeast corner.

The vote was 7-1, with Commission Chairman George Williamson voting against the entire zoning change.

Williamson said, "I don't believe either of them are needed."

Commissioners Bob Allington, George David, G. E. Deitemeyer, Art Duerschner, Bruce Nims, Mrs. Thelma Miller and Jerome Warner voted for the partial approval plan. Louis Shackelford was absent.

Commission members called for a change from H-2 Highway Commercial to H-S Service on the southeast corner saying they thought the property could be developed in too many other ways under the requested zoning district.

Duerschner pointed out that under the H-2 Commercial district, lumber and coal yards, garages, motor truck terminals and storage yards could be built.

The H/S Service district allows restaurants, service stations, hotels and motels, plus retail shops.

The commission also approved the application of Modern Methods, Inc., to construct a community unit plan at 7th and Superior.

The developer is proposing to build 120 units in nine structures, on a 17.8-acre site.

In further action the commission first denied, then approved an application for another community unit plan at 84th and A.

Phil Stettinger and Raymond Woodward are proposing to build 14 townhouses on a 3.77-acre tract.

The commission also reaffirmed its position in denying an application made by William Spader for a change in zone at 66th and Vine.

The City Council had referred the application back to the commission for a report, after the council had ruled Spader's application was substantially different than a similar request made last spring.

City ordinance prohibits the reintroduction of a zoning change within one year after its denial.

Spader is proposing to build a professional building, restaurant and elderly housing on the property.

All recommendations now go to the City Council for further action.

The commission also:

Changes of Zone

—Denied application of Karl Wierke, from A-2 Single to D Multiple, at NW corner of 70th and Vine.

—Approved application of Robert Rentrif and Crawford Pierce, from A-1 Single to G Local Business at Hwy. 2 and Pioneers Blvd. and 32nd.

Special Permits

—Approved application of John Hoppe to amend community unit plan for portion of Brinkhurst West, at 40th and Old Cheney Rd. and preliminary plat of Brinkhurst West and final plat.

Amendments

—Deferred action of proposed amendment to delete section in zoning code entitled Open Space partially or wholly surrounded by building in its entirety.

—Approved amendment in H-2

Johnson Foundation Grant Totals $120,248 For College Of Dentistry

Dr. Richard E. Bradley, dean of the College of Dentistry, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Wednesday announced receipt of a $120,248 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, Princeton, N.J., under the foundation's nationwide student aid program to increase the number of future dentists likely to enter practice in dentally underserved areas.

The grants are being administered by the American Fund for Dental Education under guidelines established by the foundation.

The grant provides support over the next four academic years for scholarship and loan awards to women students, students from rural backgrounds, and those from the nation's black, American Indian, Mexican-American, and U.S. mainland Puerto Rican populations. The individual recipients and the amounts granted will be determined by the College of Dentistry.

The 120,248 grant to the college is part of the foundation's $4 million program announced in October to assist students from these groups through four-year grants to the nation's 56 dental schools.

According to the foundation, the program for women

Lincoln General To Use Gift For Communications

A $1,000 gift to Lincoln General Hospital from the Brunswick Corp. will be used to install a telecommunications system in the hospital's emergency room, according to W. Robert Brumgard, Lincoln General administrator.

The gift was presented Wednesday to Brumgard by Robert Sigrist, Brunswick plant manager in Lincoln.

Sigrist said the plant, since its opening in 1963, has used Lincoln General for any plant emergencies.

Brumgard said the telecommunications system will permit communications between the emergency room and ambulances and physicians on duty.

The installation will also permit Lincoln General to hook into the state telecommunications system, connecting it with emergency agencies statewide.

Installation is set for early spring.

Suit Filed In Zone Change Denial

William L. Burns filed suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday seeking a reversal of the City Council's action denying his application for a change of zone for property at 10th and Harrison.

Burns alleges that on Sept. 6, 1972, he filed a petition to change the zoning on the property from A-Single Family to D-Multiple Dwelling.

According to the petition, on Oct. 25 the City-County Planning Commission held a hearing and recommended denial of the change of zone, and on Dec. 11 the City Council denied the application.

The plaintiff contends that prior to his making application for the zoning change the property was surrounded by various types of zoning and multiple dwellings existed within a two-block area of the property.

He contends the property is not conducive to single-family dwellings because it is vacant and of the neighborhood and because the adjacent property

JEFF

Up in the rainy dawn. It was still dark outside, the neon glowing across the morning black water of Snug Harbor. A bunch of chill rain was falling when I went out to get the paper.

I came in and put on the coffee. A few seagulls were standing around on the dock telling fish stories.

How does it happen all other column writers stay the same age in their column pictures? It is gloomy to look in the mirror in the a.m. and then see in the papers your friends looking as young as they did ten years ago.

At times I've thought of putting one of my dog's pictures in the column. Change by the byline. Let the reader think it is written by a thoughtful dog. Dogs don't change much with age.

"Hi dog, you haven't changed a bit."

At present we are out of dogs. I had one dog who had great respect for newspapers.

That was Cody, a Chesapeake retriever. I got him when he was a couple of months old. I also got a dog training book. We sat down to learn together.

"When the puppy makes a 'mistake' scold him and show him the newspaper you have put on the floor in the corner."

Well, I put newspapers in all corners. The dog preferred the middle of the floor.

Then I tried covering all the floor—I had to subscribe to the Sunday New York Times to cover all the acreage. It was an enormous room downstairs. What we called the playroom.

That dog respected newspapers so much that he searched and found any little space where there was no newspaper. If he couldn't find a place, he pawed the newspapers to one side.

I spent a lot of time with the mop.

That was when I got the idea of making him a newspaper columnist.

When I was shoveling coal for the dailies, I was often sent to interview talking dogs. Why shouldn't a dog write?

"Flash! Floor littered with newspapers again. This man is a sloppy Joe. A real slob. Cleaned up the newspapers by pawing them into a pile. Hard work but I can't stand messy people."

"Man later came by with a mop."

I had a boxer named Mike. An intelligent dog, but he gave no sign of literary ambition. More of a restaurant type.

I had a dog named Inc. I gave him an old corporation I had laying around. Made him chairman of the board—he should become the Wolf of Wall Street.

"Inc., what do you think of Natural Gas, preferred?"

Naturally, none of these dogs ever talked to me. But I was expert in making doggy quotes.

I worked for a city editor who was sane on every point except talking dogs. A lot of people are nutty on dogs and think their dogs really do talk.

They phone the papers about it. Most city editors say: "That's interesting. As soon as we get a reporter free, we'll send him out."

Then they forget it.

Not my editor. "Talking dog on 45th Avenue," he would sing out. "On your way."

He was sure the dog talked. That the quotes would be interesting. And that I was the boy to get them.

I came back with interview you wouldn't believe I didn't believe them. Probably the readers didn't believe them. But the city editor—he believed them. "Whose bread I eat, his son I sing."

Emotional Problems Of Rapid City Residents Traced To Flood

By MARY VOBORIL
UNL School of Journalism
Senior

Rapid City S.D. —When a Rapid City grade school boy registered for school last fall, he completed an information sheet this way:

Father's address: Rapid City Cemetery

Father's occupation: Plays harp

How father may be reached: Call heaven.

The boy's father was among the more than 200 persons who died in the June 9, 1972, flood.

Mental health authorities say the boy is one of many Rapid City residents with emotional problems stemming from the flood. They say he needs counseling. And they are concerned over a lack of money to finance it.

After a disaster, survivors usually receive enough food, clothing and housing to get back on their feet. It's the emotional need, the unspoken one victims sometimes keep bottled up for months or years, that goes untreated.

Such is the case in Rapid City.

Within a week after the flood, Mayor Don Barnett set up a Steering Committee on Mental Health to develop plans to qualify for federal aid in mental health recovery.

Documentation
The committee documented an Oct. 25 report to the Denver regional office of the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Dept. with the following:

—A mother who stood by helplessly as three of her five children drowned now feels unworthy to care for the remaining two. "I'm a bad mother," she sobbed to authorities. "I can't take care of my children. If I keep them something will happen to them. They'll die. I can't protect them. Please, take them."

—Court records indicate a soaring divorce rate and a nurse at an outpatient clinic reported a "great deal of marital conflict." The nurse also said that because the flood washed away supplies of birth control pills, the number of unwanted pregnancies — legitimate and illegitimate — has skyrocketed.

—An elderly man who lived alone except for his dog suffers nightmares and has lost weight because when he escaped the flood he left the dog behind and heard its cries as it drowned. The man has left Rapid City and refuses to return.

—A couple relocated in a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) trailer after their home was lost in the flood now is near divorce because the husband has become withdrawn and refuses to do anything in their old home, he loved to garden and remodel. Now his wife thinks he is lazy and she wants a divorce.

Police Chief Ron Messer said the emotional aftermath is not restricted to flood victims.

"Everyone was affected by the flood. Everybody knew people who drowned," he said.

Self-Reproach

Post-flood symptoms among Rapid City residents include panic or uneasiness during storms, recurring nightmares and survival guilt — self-reproach for having lived when others died, according to Bill Gardner, director of the West River Mental Health Clinic (WRMHC).

Dr. Gertie Janss, a steering committee member, said survival guilt often takes the form of psychomatic illness — real pain without organic cause.

Dr. Janss told of a mother whose home and family escaped the flood. The woman began taking her children to the family doctor once or twice each week with minor aches and pains the doctors considered normal. The doctors now suspect the children are beginning to imagine illnesses.

Edwin Koepf, director of the Brookings, S.D., Area Guidance Center, described the flood as a shock.

"Generally, when people have a shock they become numb to it. That is how you protect yourself. Victims do what they have to do to survive and are too busy to let the emotional aspects bother them. Then six months to a year later they have time to sit and think and reality sets in."

"Sooner or later it hits them — people they used to see several times a week are dead, their house is gone, the landscape is changed. The numbness wears off and depression sets in. Some even consider suicide."

Mayor Barnett said he was forewarned the need for counseling would show up.

"Disaster officials in California and Mississippi cautioned us not to overlook the mental health factor," he said. "They said we should allocate some disaster funds for counseling because we would be needing it in a few months."

"But the need was apparent within days," Barnett said. Sister Sarto Rogers, St. John's McNamara Hospital administrators and former steering committee chairwoman, agreed.

"Of course there was a need. People were frantic," she said. Although more than seven months have passed since the flood, Sister Sarto said there is "a lot of sickness" in town.

"There are people who haven't had a good night's sleep since June 9, those who say they must sleep with a light on, persons who refuse to drive on certain streets in town," she said.

Larry Lowler, a WRMHC assistant, said he has noticed some townspeople "walking around in a daze." Many deny they are troubled, Lowler said, but he observed that "some people are depressed without even knowing they are depressed."

Stricken Area Compared To War Zone

(Continued from Page 8.) smoulders — and sometimes sparks — in the government trailer camps, where HUD within 70 days relocated about 600 families.

The families were packed together almost without thought of race, previous income or social status. Persons accustomed to almost unlimited privacy and space are having trouble adjusting to the discomforts of a crowded, noisy trailer camp.

"Minor complaints are manifest because of the close proximity," Police Chief Messer said. "People are on edge. Our most common complaints from the camps are for fighting, dogs barking, kids hitting sticks against trailers, that sort of thing."

One trailer camp resident said people in her camp had been shooting at the mailman.

The mental health problem developed last summer after 10-14 inches of rain spilled onto the Rapid City area, swelling Rapid Creek to as much as 800 times its usual flow. Normally about 14 inches of rain fall in the area in an entire year.

Chain Reaction
The night of June 9, mountain streams poured more and more water and debris into Rapid Creek, the major outlet draining the Black Hills. The creek soon flooded, causing damage upstream.

Rapid Creek empties into Canyon Lake, at the edge of Rapid City. More trouble mounted against Canyon Lake Dam.

Around midnight the earthen dam broke unleashing a five-foot wall of water that careened along the creek from one end of Rapid City to the other, tearing through tin and cardboard Indian hovels and fashionable dream homes.

The toll: 238 dead; 1,200 houses and more than 100 businesses swept away irreparably; 5,600 motor vehicles lost, damaged or destroyed. At least five bodies are still missing.

The banner headline of the June 23 Rapid City Journal flood edition read, "It's Kind of Like War. Isn't It?" More than seven months later, the flood area still is "kind of like war."

Gutted homes, scattered about the bottom of a breathtaking canyon, look as if they've been bombed. Debris is everywhere — bulldozed aside, caught high in tree branches, hanging from glassless windows in tenanted halves of houses. Gaping foundations are common.

Some Rapid Cityans try to forget the flood by refusing to talk about it. Others ache to tell their stories and can't seem to talk enough about their ordeals, or those of friends or relatives. Some simply recite expanded tales of spectacular heroics.

Other Fared Worse
Of the victims, one factor is common: no matter how heartbreaking a story they may have, they almost always know someone who had it tougher.

One of the saddest cases: The current caught a car containing a man, his wife and five children and slammed it between two trees. The father kicked out a window and climbed onto the car's roof. He grasped his wife's arm through the broken window and pulled her to safety.

Meanwhile, the 10-year old daughter inside struggled to stay above the rapidly rising water line. Twice she felt something knock against her leg, but she kicked it away, thinking it was debris. The third time she realized the offending object was her brother, aged 2½.

The girl clutched her brother as her father located her and pulled her to safety, but the current swept the child from her grasp. His body was found three weeks later.

Two other sons died inside the car. With them alive — was a daughter, 12, who managed to find an air pocket.

"It must have been terrible for parents to have to be there to watch their children drown. I don't see how such people can retain their sanity," said Mrs. Peggy Slaughter.

Mrs. Slaughter, her husband and 10-year-old daughter lived on Rapid Creek several miles above Canyon Lake. The family escaped the flood to a cliff above their home, then watched as the current ripped the home from its foundation and stepped it onto a nearby highway.

They saw the home's walls crack and watched as half the house, including a room containing the inventory of Slaughter's trout-fly tying business — was swept away.

Losses Remembered
Mrs. Slaughter said it disturbs her to start looking for something, such as a familiar cooking utensil, then remembering it was washed away in the flood.

She is saddened to talk about the loss of their wedding pictures, her daughter's baby book, photos of her husband's late parents. She said the hurt is still there.

"I thought it would go away, but it hasn't. I thought I would forget, but I can't. I think about the flood every day," she said.

"But you have to go on. We came out of this so well compared to others — none of us was lost. But if one more person tells me how lucky we are, I may go crazy."

She said any amount of water makes her "want to jump in the car and drive away."

Another person still disturbed by the flood is Mary Margaret Bruns. She and her husband had to weather part of the flood in the attic of their lakefront home, where they donned innertubes "just in case." They heard and felt another house crunch into their own, causing an explosion.

The couple was blown from the attic into flood waters, where Bruns' innertube was punctured by debris. Mrs. Bruns remembers floating over the fifth hole of a nearby golf course, then grabbing a door handle of a vehicle wedged in debris.

A person on higher ground heard her screams and urged her to concentrate on hanging on.

Six-Hour Wait
"He would call to me every hour to make sure I hadn't let go," she said. She was rescued after about six hours in the water.

Half a mile from his wife, Bruns also had survived. While riding the flood without his innertube he caught tree branches and climbed to safety.

Later the Brunses returned to the site of their home. The only trace of their brick house, what one friend described as a dream home, was a small porcelain duck.

Mrs. Bruns said she almost always has difficulty getting to sleep.

"Every night I'm back in that attic, waiting for it to explode," she said.

The steering committee would like to start a mental health program similar to one in West Virginia.

A mental health problem developed in the Buffalo Creek, W. Va., area after a coal slag dam gave way, sending 130 million gallons of water crashing through mining communities. The flood killed 125 and left 4,000 homeless.

Instead of waiting for troubled persons to ask for help, the State of West Virginia sent mental health workers ringing doorbells throughout the area. Workers reported that many victims, wary of social workers and psychiatrists, at first denied feeling stunned or disoriented by the tragedy.

Problems Related
But as aides were about to leave, they report some survivors mentioned they had suffered a lot of headaches lately, or a relative had begun to drink too much.

Cases of serious disturbances in Buffalo Creek are referred to psychologists and psychiatrists. The aides for the most part provide what they call listening therapy, letting survivors air pent-up emotions and relieve experiences by talking about them.

The Rapid City steering committee and other officials had suspected for some time existing systems for mental health were inadequate, Sister Sarto said. She said the disaster demonstrated the areas of weakness and confirmed suspicions of inadequacy.

WRMHC and Lutheran Social Services, the two Rapid City counseling centers, were ready and able to handle individual problems such as delinquency, runaways, divorce, etc. if the people came to them. They could not handle a mental health problem on a scale so massive as hundreds of troubled flood victims, hesitant of wanting help, the steering committee report said.

"So we had to start from scratch," Sister Sarto said. In its report to HEW, the steering committee outlined a comprehensive mental health program to care for flood victims in the four-county area surrounding Rapid City. The committee primarily wants to dispatch 16 workers in what Sister Sarto calls a "search and find" approach modeled after the West Virginia method. But she said the committee wants to do more than that.

The two counseling centers report significant caseload increases since the flood, but they say most disturbed persons will have to be sought out for treatment because they, like the population in general, will not seek mental health care by themselves.

Most troubled persons are reluctant to admit they need care because they will have to reveal personal thoughts and activities to strangers. Others are afraid they may be labeled "crazy," if they seek help at a mental health center, Gardner said.

Steering committee members emphasize troubled persons should be found as soon as possible, before emotional problems become too much to bear and the victims crack.

But for those whose job is to combat the emotional aftermath, the past seven months have been frustrating.

"The steering committee can't seem to get beyond the paperwork stage. We're not to the point where we're getting any counselors," Mayor Barnett said.

Financing Fell Through
The committee countered because HEW hasn't come through with promised financing.

"At first we seemingly had a blank federal check. But so far, nothing," Gardner said. Why the holdup? Sister Sarto thinks it stems from President Nixon's clampdown on HEW spending.

The steering committee expected $248,162 from HEW within a week or two after completed plans and forms were submitted Oct. 25. But as of mid-January, the funds had not arrived.

Sister Sarto noted that when — and if — the funds are released, it will be at least a month before a search and find corps can be mobilized. And although $65,000 from disaster funds is being held in escrow for the committee, it has developed no concrete plans in case the federal money doesn't come through.

Kreuscher Says Market For Hay Great

... Shortages Cited In Oklahoma, Texas And Pennsylvania

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

State Director of Agriculture Glenn Kreuscher invited representatives of the farm organizations belonging to the Nebraska Agriculture Council to have their members call his office if they have hay to sell.

"The hay shortage in Oklahoma, Texas and Pennsylvania is downright critical. The civil defense director of Oklahoma told me yesterday that dairy farmers in his state have from 4 to 30 days supply of hay left. If the weather gets bad again they are going to have some mighty hungry cattle on hand," he said.

Kreuscher said the only readily available hay he knew of was 400 tons owned by the University of Nebraska at the Field Laboratory near Mead that would be sold on bids Thursday.

"We will be happy to pass the word to potential markets if they will call our office and tell us where the hay is," he said.

"It shows once again that producing food is a tough game, apparently too tough for corporations to find it profitable," he said.

Kreuscher, in a rambling report that covered several areas of interest to agriculture, expressed concern over the continuing shortage of rail transportation for grain and implications of adding to the problem by increasing crop production.

"I think we need to call attention to some of these problems so the planners in Washington are better informed," he said.

Kreuscher also suggested to the council that all the farm organizations ought to study the new concepts of land planning thoroughly.

"The decisions are being made today in the Department of Interior, Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and in Health Education and Welfare (HEW).

"We need to get some agricultural input into those land planning operations. Those young attorneys who are making the decisions don't know much about agriculture," he said.

Kreuscher indicated that the demands for revenue sharing funds were increasing. "You should see the mail I get. These are ideas for spending money that you never dreamed existed," he said.

Kreuscher told the council delegates that there was undoubtedly room for improvement in the state's inspection system but doubted that a single inspection department was the answer.

"The various agencies that do inspecting work closely now. I would like to see the inspection of rest homes transferred to the health department.

"We should have some legislation that would separate the rest home from the rooming house. You get into a real problem when you have someone in a rooming house that becomes ill or incapacitated and needs care," he said.

Kreuscher suggested that complaints made to state senators were best handled by having the inspector take the senator along on an inspection trip.

"You can't believe some of the things we find. The vast majority of people we inspect are doing a good job but you always have a few you have to watch. The guy who complains about inspections is usually the one who needs to be watched and is sometimes a major contributor to a campaign," he said.

Kreuscher said that his department was prepared to operate under a new bill calling for state funding of the weights and measures testing program but indicated satisfaction with the present system financed by inspection fees.

"If the bill to have the state pay the cost passes it will have a $275,000 fiscal impact on the state taxpayer. Since the present system works, I really see no reason to change it," he said.

Kreuscher said he would like to see his inspectors permitted to do minor repair such as lubrication of scales but indicated that it was very difficult to define just what was to be construed as a minor repair. "Some that look minor could become major job once you started," he said.

WORKING TOGETHER ... Sheriff Bryer, at the phone, and Chief Harrison, with Debra serving as dispatcher.

Lawmen In Howard County Say Cooperation Beneficial

St. Paul (AP) — A cooperative venture in law enforcement has gone into its second year in Howard County and according to Sheriff Ron Bryer and St. Paul Police Chief Robert Harrison — heads of the two agencies involved — the program has been a success.

Both Bryer and Harrison agreed when they took office in 1971 that the only way to provide both the city and the county with effective police coverage was to work together.

Other, they share the same office dispatcher who is Bryer's 17-year-old daughter Debra.

Bryer and Harrison also hold monthly informal meetings for all law enforcement personnel in Howard County, which includes the Dannebrog town marshal and two state troopers based in St. Paul.

Both men, graduates of the Grand Island Law Enforcement Training Center, say that working together as a unit has led to many improvements in the filing and record services used by their departments. And, by combining functions and facilities, they believe Howard County residents have come to depend more on their services and more willing to report a crime.

"Now when they make a call," Bryer said, "they know an officer will be on the scene within a matter of minutes."

Also helping to further enhance community relations are law enforcement classes in St. Paul and Elba schools where investigative techniques and local law enforcement methods are taught.

Harrison said the classes allow "the young people to see police officers as human beings, not flat-footed deskjocks."

Indians, Chicanos File Suit Against Officials

Omaha (AP) — A restraining order to halt alleged "harassment" of certain Indians and Chicanos involved in recent protests in Scottsbluff was granted in Omaha Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Warren Urbom.

Named in the restraining order were Scotts Bluff County Atty. Marvin Holcher; James Kruger, director of the Nebraska State Patrol; Scottsbluff Mayor C. A. Thomas; Scottsbluff Police Chief James Teal; Fred Lockwood, chairman of the county commissioners; and their "agents and servants."

The restraining order came in a class action suit filed by Boulder, Colo., attorney David Getches. It was filed in behalf of several members of the American Indian Movement (AIM) and a Chicano organizer.

The request for the injunction alleged that out of state attorneys and families of prisoners were not allowed to visit those who were jailed during disturbances in Scottsbluff.

Listed as plaintiffs in the class action suit were Martha Iron Horse; Dolores Kills In Water; Keith Matzke; Russell Means and Ramon Perez.

They contended in the suit that they were deprived of their civil rights and asked for damages totaling some $200,000.

The suit alleges that "American Indians and Chicanos have been harassed, beaten, intimidated, humiliated and insulted by law enforcement officers," and have "been denied access to counsel when placed in jail."

Among other things, the suit contends that Russell Means was attacked and struck by policemen without cause or provocation, that chemical Mace was sprayed into his eyes while he was handcuffed, that he was beaten at the police station, and that he was encouraged to use a gun to try to escape from jail.

Ag Council Elects H. Jensen

The Nebraska Agricultural Council Wednesday named Hans Jensen of Aurora as its new president for 1973. The new vice president will be Doyle Free of Lincoln and the new secretary-treasurer is Ron Holsteen of Lincoln.

Jensen represents the Nebraska Association of Farmers Elected Committeemen on the council. Free represents the Nebraska Poultry Industries, and Holsteen the Rural Electric Association of Nebraska.

The council is made up of delegates of most of the state's general farm organizations, agribusiness organizations and commodity groups.

The council members voted to increase dues from $20 to $50 per organization because of rising costs.

In other action the council gave a vote of confidence to the state agricultural products committee which is working to develop grain alcohol as a motor fuel. The resolution praised the committee and the administrator of the program, Ray Ratliff of York.

Ratliff is a former president of the council and has served the Nebraska National Farmers Organization as state secretary.

The council voted to ask Ratliff to serve as its unpaid representative at congressional hearings on efforts to revive the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) in Washington on February 6.

The council voted to ask the U.S. Department of Agriculture to maintain the present county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices in the state.

News stories from Washington have indicated that as many as 800 county ASCS offices may be eliminated in a cutback of government programs.

A resolution asking that sales of government-owned grain be stopped and that loan programs for farmer-owned grains be continued ran into opposition from livestock groups headed by Dick Earl, a spokesman for Nebraska Poultry Industries, Inc.

"The government sales of grain have helped our organization by lowering feed costs during the past two weeks. I must decline to support the resolution," he said.

The resolution failed to carry the majority of opinion needed to become official council policy.

Sindt Says Steak May Be High-But It's Available

"If the farm people in Washington are going to get new farm legislation passed, we are going to have to get most of the nation's acres into agricultural production first—particularly at a time that food prices are relatively high in the store," said Paul Sindt, state director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Sindt made the statement in an address before the noon luncheon of the Nebraska Agricultural Council in Lincoln Wednesday.

"This may be an explanation of the cuts we have been seeing in farm programs. Things are a bit rough at the state office with a telev message almost every day cutting back some farm program but the reasoning behind the cuts may not necessarily mean an end to farm programs," Sindt said.

Sindt noted that in recent days farmers had seen prices for live hogs, cattle and soybeans reach all-time highs.

"The point that you gentlemen as farm leaders need to make in speeches before rotary clubs and similar organizations is that people who do have a $20.00 bill to buy steak with can actually buy steak."

"Suppose we had a situation where steak was not available even if you did have the $20.00," he said.

"We need to remember that only 5% of the nation's people produce all the food we eat. Another 5% of the people process all the food in its travel from your far into the consumers plate."

What is not well known is that the farmer-producer gets 40% of the consumer dollar while the 5% of the people who process food get 60% of the consumer food dollar.

The processing industry is no, nearly as efficient as the farmer-producer," he said.

Sindt suggested that the council members could provide a good service to agriculture by suggesting that the frame work of the government program administrative set up be preserved until the effect of program changes are evaluated.

"We have a lot of empty grain bins on farms and I would expect most of the bins we will sell this year will move to farms in Nebraska."

I think we can store up to two years crop on farms without going back to the bin site system of storing grain," he said.

Sindt told the council

Two Air Pollution Bills Draw Mixed Reactions

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Air Pollution Control Advisory Board Wednesday night took action regarding two air pollution bills pending in the Legislature, according to L. A. Sanger, board secretary.

The group voted to oppose LB194, which would deprive local agencies and villages from controlling air pollution in their zoning areas, Sanger said. The board will advise the mayor, City Council and county commissioners of their action.

The board also voted to support LB251, which would strike the Wyoming Clause from the state environmental act. The clause prohibits the state from setting air pollution standards more stringent than those provided by national guidelines.

The advisory board elected Dr. Carl Norden of Norden Laboratories as president, and Dr. Kenneth Rose of the NU Student Health Center, vice president. Both will serve one-year terms.

Board members met Dennis Grams formerly state air pollution control officer with the State Department of Environmental Control. Grams

Number Of State Farms, Ranches Continues Down

The number of Nebraska farms and ranches dropped to 71,000 last year, 1,000 fewer than in 1971, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said.

Total land operated in 1972 was 48,160,670 acres.

The division noted the decline in farm and ranch numbers continued a trend which started in 1934 when the state had 124,600 farms and ranches.

The average size of farms in 1962 was 548 acres, compared with 677 in 1972 and 687 in 1973.

27 Persons Are Arrested In Massive Drug Crackdown

Over a month of investigation by four undercover officers of the Nebraska State Patrol's drug control division culminated Tuesday and Wednesday as law enforcement officials made arrests at almost 20 Lincoln residences.

The total number of persons arrested on drug charges by late Wednesday stood at 27. However, Lancaster Deputy County Attorney Robert Gibson said arrest of three juveniles was not connected with the main roundup.

Nineteen of those arrested were arraigned on felony charges on Lancaster County Court. Three were arraigned on misdemeanor charges and five were turned over to Juvenile Court.

Gibson said 34 warrants were issued late Tuesday and arrests were made starting at about 8 p.m. Tuesday. Only 12 of the warrants had not been served by late Wednesday, with the latest arrest made Wednesday afternoon.

Gibson said the operation was "numerically the largest drug roundup we've ever had in Lincoln" and was "centered at getting the dealers of drugs" rather than users.

Gibson said many of the arrests were the results of "busts" made by the undercover agents. He said the drugs involved included heroin, cocaine, morphine, LSD, psilocybin, peyote, hashish and marijuana.

He said a total of about $2,550 was expended during the undercover work, with about $1,500 of that sum recovered.

The investigation in Lincoln began in Dec. 11, according to Gibson. He said its success was the result of "excellent cooperation" between the law enforcement agencies involved.

Those arraigned on felony charges, the charges, the preliminary hearing date for the case and the bond set are:

Myles, McArthur, 2311 T, one ct deliver peyote, one ct deliver marijuana, Feb. 13, $2,500.

Floyd Albert Rhodes, 17, 411 E, two cts deliver marijuana, March 8, $2,000.

Town Talk

This is the morning we do some talking about that well known Lincoln personality whose interesting story couldn't be told yesterday.

It might be well to first mention the Specialty Stores Association that has its headquarters in New York. Perhaps the name Specialty Stores Association is an unfamiliar name to the majority of Lincoln residents, but there is nothing unfamiliar about the name Min Loder. Almost everyone knows her, and of her career as the head of, and the buyer for the sports clothes department at Hovland-Swanson.

The story, however, is not about what Mrs. Loder is doing in Lincoln; it is about what she will be doing during the next five or six weeks.

On Sunday Mrs. Loder will be leaving for far away places, and she will be one of but three of the nation's buyers chosen by the Specialty Stores Association, to make the trips—for buying purposes, of course.

From Lincoln Mrs. Loder will fly to New York and on to Florence, Italy, where she will turn a shrewd eye on the fashion world and its merchandise. From Italy the traveler goes to Tel Aviv—more fashions and more buying—Then to Bangkok from there to Hong Kong, and after Hong Kong there will be a buying session in Taiwan.

***

Lincoln will remember Mr. and Mrs. "Dusty" Rhoades who resided in Lincoln about 10 years or so ago, and if your memory serves you well, you will recall that Mr. Rhoades was the general manager of Gold's for a period of time.

Since leaving Lincoln things have been happening to the Rhoades family.

Mr. Rhoades is the president of the Rhodes Co., and has served as assistant merchandise manager for Amfac which is the guardian angel for more than 30, top bracket stores. It seems that Mr. Rhoades' is one of those fortunate few who can turn a loser into a winner—and that is what he has been doing.

But now Mr. and Mrs. Rhoades have gone to Buenos Aires, Argentina where Mr. Rhoades will be one of the mainstays of Harrod's which, as almost everyone knows is one of London's famous stores.

MISS MARY ANN SUESS

Town and campus will share interest in the announcement made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Suess of Blair, of the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ann, to Ted Sonderegger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sonderegger of Lincoln.

The wedding is planned for June. Miss Suess was graduated last December from the University of Nebraska where she majored in elementary education and remedial reading. She now is an instructor in remedial reading in the Lincoln public schools.

Mr. Sonderegger will be graduated in May from the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration, and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

MISS DEBRA OURADA

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ourada of Sargent make announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Debra, to James Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Sharp of Lincoln.

The wedding will take place in June.

Miss Ourada is a junior in the University of Nebraska Teachers College.

Mr. Sharp, who has completed a tour of duty with the United States Navy is a junior in the University of Nebraska College of Architecture.

IN SUBURBIA

After the chilling winds and dark, gloomy skies of the past weekend, fair weather and sunshine are back with us again, and our suburban residents can resume their activities unhampered by threats of snow storms—for a little while at least.

This morning our news from suburbia is varied as we will be discussing birthday parties, dinners and ski trips.

We will begin with a birthday at the Trendwood home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wendell. And a very important birthday it was, since Mr. and Mrs. Wendell's daughter, Sheri, was 13 years old on Wednesday, Jan. 24, joining the ranks of millions of other teenagers.

The event was celebrated by a bowling party which was held Wednesday after school. Those attending included Mrs. Wendell and Sheri's sister, Kristy, and her brother, Greg, along with a friend, Marcia Ziegelbein.

Although Mr. Wendell could not participate in the bowling affair, he was delegated to provide the birthday dinner, which he did by stopping for sandwiches on his way home from work.

Wellington Greens residents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Oxton, were guests of honor Saturday evening, Jan. 20, at a going-away party, which was hosted by their former neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. David Orr.

Among those attending to wish the Oxtons best of luck in their new home in Denver, Colo., were Col. and Mrs. Lee Nolan, Mrs. Ted Ciochone, Mrs. Juanita Spillman, Mrs. John Gist, and Miss Marilyn Oldham.

Everyone attending, including the Oxton's son, Jay Oxton, enjoyed the festive event and the buffet dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Vladislav Sobotka and their daughter, Miss Janet Sobotka, of Southbrook Summit gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sobotka's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Sobotka, on Sunday, Jan. 14, to not only watch the televised Super Bowl game, but also to participate in a birthday celebration.

It seems that Mrs. Richard Sobotka hosted a buffet supper on Sunday evening to honor her husband's birthday, which was Tuesday, Jan. 9, and Miss Sobotka's birthday, which took place on Saturday, Jan. 6.

The dinner guests also included the Vladislav Sobotka's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Braun, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sobotka and family.

Skiing is one of the most popular and exciting of the winter sports. However, the terrain in the Lincoln area is far from the most accommodating to skiing enthusiasts who, therefore, have settled on flatland skiing or occasionally plan short trips to more mountainous areas of the country.

Since this season's snowfall has been minimal and short-lived, many suburban residents have embarked on ski trips to such neighboring states as Colorado.

And one such trip recently was completed by Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne L. Stauffer of Colner Terrace. The suburban residents were accompanied on their five-day expedition by Mr. and Mrs. Don Friesen, also of Lincoln, and Mr. and Mrs. Reece Johnson, who make their home in Odebolt, Iowa.

The skiing party, which included two novice skiers, departed on Wednesday, and returned on Sunday, and the schedule allowed for three full days of skiing on the slopes near Breckenridge and Vail, Colo.

Slumber parties still are the favorite variety for young ladies who are in the pre-teen and teenage years. It is a rare occasion when either the guests or the hostess get even the smallest cat-nap at those "slumber-less" parties.

Miss Sherry Carothers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Carothers of Wedgewood Manor, who actually celebrated her 10th birthday on Wednesday, Jan. 24, will wait until Friday, Jan. 26, for her official birthday observance. And the party, of course, will take the form of a slumber party at which eight or nine of Miss Carothers' friends will join her for a series of games, treats, and a sleepless night.

Parties For February Bride-Elect

One of the very busy brides-elect is Miss Linda Minchow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Minchow, who has chosen Saturday, Feb. 3, as the date of her marriage to John R. Staley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenwood Staley.

Among the recent courtesies for Miss Minchow was the miscellaneous shower for which Mrs. L. A. Sanger and Mrs. Paul Macek were hostesses on Sunday, Jan. 21, when they entertained at the home of Mrs. Sanger.

On Thursday evening, Jan. 18, Miss Minchow was in the role of a hostess when she entertained her bridesmaids at dinner at Valentino's.

The bride-elect, however, still was in the honored guest category on Sunday, Jan. 7, when Miss Diane Morgan was a hostess at her home. During the informal afternoon the soon-to-be bride was presented with a miscellaneous shower.

The prenuptial courtesies for Miss Minchow actually began in December when Mrs. Robert Anderson started things off with a miscellaneous shower at her home.

The wedding of Miss Minchow and Mr. Staley will take place at St. Teresa's Church where the ceremony will be solemnized at 3 o'clock.

BOOKS

"The Man With A Shattered World"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

"The Man With A Shattered World: The History Of A Brain Wound." The title of the book speaks for itself. Compiled by the noted Russian neuropsychologist, A. R. Luria and published by Basic Books, it is the authentic story of a young man who sustained a brain injury during World War II, and, most importantly, it is the saga of his courageous struggle to regain the abilities that he lost as a result of his wound.

In 1943, when he was called to join the Russian army in its fight against Germany, Zaslavsky, the subject of the book, was a third-year student at a Soviet polytechnical institute. He possessed a brilliant mind, and a promising future awaited him pending the conclusion of his studies.

Then in March of that same year he sustained a bullet wound to the brain that affected the region of the cerebral cortex which digests and converts successive pieces of information into patterns one can grasp simultaneously. As a result of the injury Zaslavsky was rendered unable to combine visual impressions into a coherent whole. His world became fragmented, shattered, and his disorientation left the once-brilliant young man illiterate and perpetually dumbfounded in an environment that is ordered by the relationship between various objects.

When Dr. Luria first met him in May 1943 Zaslavsky was incapable of remembering words for common objects or constructing complete sentences. Furthermore he was unable to associate the functions of two related objects, he succeeded in recognizing a needle and thread, but he couldn't remember how to put them to use, and the right side of his vision was impaired making it impossible for him to perceive objects as a coherent whole. As Dr. Luria summarizes it:

"The bullet fragment that entered his brain had so devastated his world that he no longer had any sense of space. Could not judge relationships between things and perceived the world as broken into thousands of separate parts. As he put it, 'space made no sense,' he feared it for it lacked stability."

Dr. Luria was in close contact with the patient for some 26 years, during which time Zaslavsky began the painful process of attempting to recover all that he had lost. He literally had to learn to read all over again — and a tedious process it was because due to impaired vision, he was unable to see whole words at a time. He was forced to read words letter by letter, and because of the memory lapses that also plagued him, he frequently would forget the first letters of a word by the time he reached the end of it.

The anguish he endured in trying to piece together his shattered world was all the greater because he was cognizant of the nature of his illness, and he remembered what he had been before the tragic accident. These realizations drove him to attempt to regain his former productivity, and in order to restore his own sense of usefulness he learned once again how to write, after which he began the painful process of recording his impressions in a daily diary.

The 3,000-word document took him 25 years to complete, and as the days and months passed it became no easier for him to express himself. But he reconciled himself to this and would sit at his desk all day stubbornly hunting for words, frantically trying to grasp them and put them into a sentence before the idea escaped him. And he did all this just to write ten lines a day, occasionally a page.

In the book Dr. Luria quotes liberally from the diary which contains Zaslavsky's own account of his life after his injury, and the insurmountable difficulties he faced. The reader is struck by Zaslavsky's tale of his day-to-day struggles with problems that would seem inane to those with unimpaired mental faculties, by his repeated references to the dream world or nightmare world in which he existed.

Although the text is somewhat repetitive, a result primarily of Zaslavsky's confused state of mind, it makes for compelling reading. And Dr. Luria's explanatory interjections and his chapters summarizing cerebral functions serve to illuminate the nature of the subject's injury.

Finally, Zaslavsky's diary, which forms the basis for "The Man With A Shattered World," is an inspiring testimonial to the capacity of the human spirit to reach beyond limitations often cruelly imposed upon it.

Meeting

Mrs. R. M. Sandstedt, president of the Odds and Ends Extension Club, served as the hostess when that group met at her home recently.

"How To Complain" was the title of the lesson which was presented by Mrs. Lena Huston and Mrs. W. E. Lyness.

Mrs. Bertha Stall was assisting hostess for the event.

Soroptimist Program

Sam E. Hale, director of volunteer services for the Lincoln County Juvenile Court, was the guest speaker at the Soroptimist Club of Lincoln's annual public affairs dinner which was held at Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker on Wednesday evening, Jan. 24.

Mr. Hale's address, which followed the 7 o'clock dinner, was entitled "Communicating Acceptance."

Miss Mardzi Kups was the chairman for the January dinner meeting.

ABBY: can't blame girls for husband's problem

DEAR ABBY Please warn girls against hitchhiking rides with men. Girls who get into a car with a strange man are just begging for trouble, but there is another side to it which few people consider.

My husband has a problem. He has been trying to overcome for six years. It's a compulsion to expose himself to young women. He is not a rapist, he only does this to get a thrill from their reaction. He has never touched a girl, though many have encouraged him to go further. One of these girls reported him to the police and he is now facing the possibility of having to leave me and our three small children for a long term on a charge of indecent exposure.

I am not condoning his actions, but he has finally faced his problem and is getting psychiatric treatment. He is a good husband and provider and the children adore him and so do I. I plan to help him through this crisis, but I need help from everyone else of my sex.

Abby, please ask girls not to hitchhike with strange men. They may be giving someone who is trying to go straight an opportunity to stray again and the price is paid by his family.

WORRIED FOR MY HUSBAND
DEAR WORRIED I agree, hitchhiking is a risky business for all concerned. While I appreciate your understanding attitude and your empathy to your husband, he cannot shift the responsibility for his compulsion to the girls who are foolish enough to hitchhike with him. He is doing the right thing in facing up to his problem and getting psychiatric treatment. But public sympathy is more on the side of the hitchhikers than the man with such a problem.

DEAR ABBY My husband sleeps all over the bed. He rolls on top of me or pushes me off the bed in his sleep. He sleeps so soundly it's impossible to wake him up. If I ask him to please roll over, he does — on me!

The next morning he doesn't remember a thing. All his life he's had a full-sized bed to himself and he's accustomed to sleeping that way without giving anybody else a thought. We have been married for two years and I haven't had a good night's sleep yet.

We are buying new bedroom furniture and I want twin beds. He says he isn't ready for that yet and he wants a king-sized bed. What is your advice?

SLEEPYTIME GAL

DEAR GAL: Compromise. Get the twin beds with a single headboard. That way you'll each have your own mattress. And if you can get the kind that "swing" apart, by all means do. I have an idea you may need them.

DEAR ABBY I sure hope that lady who said she and her husband didn't have any sex relations for more than 12 years doesn't find out (like I did) that SHE was going without, but her husband wasn't. My husband was being "served" by a waitress for six years, and all the time I felt so sorry for him. I thought he lost his manhood because he had had a prostate operation. We're divorced now, so it doesn't matter anymore, but some wives can be too trusting.

Opening lead - four of spades.

It is certainly possible to stumble into a good result by accident.

For example, consider this deal from a pair championship where North responded to partner's heart bid with a spade. This fancy bit of footwork was intended to inhibit East-West from bidding their (presumed) best suit, but South unexpectedly raised him to four spades.

North thus found himself in a position where he couldn't afford to pass, and where he couldn't bid five hearts for fear his partner would read this as a slam try and jump to six spades.

So North decided, for better or worse, to jump to six hearts, which could not be misunderstood, and in that way he terminated the kangarooish bidding sequence.

Strangely enough, the spade bid turned out extremely well when West decided to lead one, expecting partner to ruff. Now the slam could not be defeated. Declarer won East's queen with the king, cashed the A-K of trumps and played a low club.

West now found himself placed squarely on the horns of a dilemma. Actually, he followed low, permitting dummy's queen to win. Declarer thereupon cashed the ace of spades, entered his hand with a trump, and led the ten of spades through West's jack. It did not matter whether or not West covered, in either case declarer would be able to dispose of dummy's last club on a good spade and lose only a diamond trick to make the slam.

Had West gone up with the ace of clubs at trick four, the outcome would have been the same. In that case, declarer would not have lost a diamond trick, for he would have disposed of one of dummy's diamonds on the king of clubs and another on the extra spade trick he could establish.

Prasch: Youth May Be Our Rescue In Use Of Technology In Education

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln School Supt John Prasch, who is also a member of the Nebraska Educational Television Commission, suggested Wednesday that "youth may come to our rescue" in use of technology in education.

"Kids learn how to use these gadgets much more readily than we do," said Prasch in a speech on the future of instructional television.

His remarks came at a one day conference on the "state of the art in educational communications" sponsored by the Nebraska Council for Educational Television, Inc.

NCET is a voluntary statewide cooperative of school districts who join forces to provide instructional television services to schools.

Although it once financed such services, that responsibility has been assumed now by the state.

In his presentation, Prasch touched on several problems in ETV in the past and pointed to probable future concerns.

One of his futuristic guesses, he said, is that young people raised in a world of television and other new technology will more readily adapt such advances to classroom and innovative educational use.

"In total, in the classroom and other places, we make precious little use of the technology available," said Prasch, who noted he had brought no audio-visual equipment to accompany his speech.

"Most of us don't realize the extent to which we're handicapped by expertise and experience," he said. "We have to examine carefully whether experience is an advantage or a detour" in a rapidly changing world.

Prasch also said that efforts to protect vested interests or to build empires "at many levels" often got in the way of technology in the past.

Some "backward thinking" crucified some pretty good ideas," he said.

And he said classroom teachers have not been included enough in planning for use of ETV, and suggested "we made a serious mistake when we let ETV become different from ITV."

"What the kid sees in the home is equally as valuable" educationally, he said.

ITV refers to classroom use of television, while ETV is used to refer to evening programming on public television.

But Prasch said he believes distinctions between ITV and ETV and also commercial television will fade in the future.

The Lincoln superintendent said he believes Nebraska is in a unique position, because of its history of development in ETV, its facilities and its cooperative spirit, to continue to be a leader in use of technology.

The major challenges, he said, include how to involve the classroom teacher in use of technology in education, "continued development of new institutions that allow us to respond, rather than an attitude that sees something as threatening in everything that comes up," and attention to insure that technology permits people to make educational settings more, rather than less, humane.

Capt. Eugene Kotouc

Army Nixes Appeal By Capt. Kotouc

Washington (AP) — The Army Wednesday rejected an appeal by Capt. Eugene Kotouc, exonerated of charges in connection with the My Lai massacre, that he be allowed to remain on active duty as an officer.

The Army said Kotouc, 38, of Humboldt, Neb., was "notified of his release from active duty as a captain," but said he could remain in the service as an enlisted man until eligible for retirement.

The captain is now serving with the Army in Germany. He was charged with murdering and maiming one person at My Lai, but was found innocent.

Kotouc's attorney, former Nebraska Gov. Robert G. Crosby, charged that his client was treated unjustly.

Suit Challenging State Abortion Law Revived

A suit challenging Nebraska's laws on abortion which has lain dormant in U.S. District Court in Lincoln for over one and one-half years has been revived.

The suit was filed in April of 1971 by a 20-year-old Lincoln woman and an Omaha physician, referred to in the suit as Mary Doe and Dr. John Rose.

A three-judge panel of U.S. District Judges Warren K. Urbom and Robert V. Denney and U.S. Circuit Judge Donald Ross "indefinitely" suspended the case in May, 1971.

However, the three-judge panel has now ordered the parties in the suit to file briefs on or before Feb. 9, limiting discussion to the Jan. 22, 1973 Supreme Court decision of Roe vs. Wade and Doe vs. Bolton.

The parties are ordered to discuss how the decisions apply to Nebraska Statute's challenged in the suit and to suggest the "proper disposition" of the case.

The suit asks that the defendants Gov. J. James Exon, Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer and Douglas County Atty. D. Donald Knowles be barred from enforcing a state law which makes abortion and foeticide illegal.

The suit contends that the state law is unconstitutional.

The United States Supreme Court Monday ruled that American women have the right to have medical abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

The law apparently struck down laws in 31 states, including Nebraska, which make it a crime for a doctor to end a pregnancy except to save the life of the mother.

Citizen Contact With Judicial Nominating Units Is Debated

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Should citizens be able to contact individual members of judicial nominating commissions about candidates for judgeships?

That question emerged Wednesday as the major bone of contention in a legislative bill to implement last November's constitutional amendment altering the composition of nominating commissions.

LB110, sponsored by Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice, would prohibit individual contacts.

Attorney General Clarence Meyer who, Carstens said, directed the preparation of the bill at his request, told the Judiciary Committee he "strongly favor(s)" such a provision.

But Lincoln attorney Chauncey Barney urged senators not to "put (nominating commission members) in a deep freeze away from the public."

Citizens should be able to express their wishes, or pass along information, about prospective judges to individual commission members, he said, especially since the merit system of appointing judges is "a substitute for elections."

The committee decided to hold the bill for further study and a possible compromise agreement by both sides.

LB110 states that "no one shall contact individual members of the commission except by formal written communications directed to the chairman." If communications are received by other members, they are to be forwarded immediately to the chairman "for the information of all members."

Facts and opinions relevant to the judicial qualifications of proposed nominees are to be formally presented to the full commission at public hearings, the bill states.

"All should be out in the open," Meyer told the committee. Such a provision is "a highly important part of the selection process," he declared.

LB110 would change the current seven-member commissions to nine-member units, composed of four lay members, four lawyers and one Supreme Court judge. The judge would act as commission chairman, but not be allowed to vote.

No more than two of the lay citizens and two of the lawyers may be members of the same political party.

The bill provides that the term of current commission members would expire 30 days after the new law became effective. If the Legislature does not add the emergency clause to the measure, that would be four months after the 1973 Legislature adjourns.

Names of all judicial candidates would be released in advance of a public hearing, and commission nominees would be chosen by a roll call vote at a public meeting. At least two nominees would be submitted to the governor for his consideration.

Sen. Fred Carstens

Support for the bill was voiced by the League of Women Voters of Nebraska.

Carstens said the basic changes were submitted to a vote of the people last November "in an effort to save the merit system."

It was "about dead" as a result of deficiencies, he said.

Among other bills heard by the committee was LB126, which would allow the appointment of ex-offenders as deputy probation or parole officers. There was no opposition to the measure, and it was held for later action.

12-Man Omaha Council Bill Held After Public Hearing

By The Associated Press

A bill to increase the size of the Omaha City Council from seven to 12 members stalled in the Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee after a public hearing Wednesday.

A motion to kill Omaha Sen. David Stahmer's LB139 drew a 3-3 tie vote, and no further action was taken.

The bill is in conflict with another measure, Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' LB12, which calls for elections by districts.

The Stahmer bill retains at-large elections.

LB12 has been endorsed by the government committee and awaits floor action.

Stahmer told the committee Wednesday the larger council would tend to provide a better geographic spread and representation of more diverse groups. He said his experience as a member of the 12-member Omaha School Board demonstrated to him that a larger city council would be desirable in a city the size of Omaha.

Opposing the bill, Omaha City Atty. Herb Fittle maintained the measure would not guarantee "geographic distribution or minority representation." Councilmen receive $6,000 a year, and adding five of them would cost the city another $30,000, he noted.

Two other Omaha-related bills received hearing and were held for later disposition.

One was Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich's LB71, which prescribes that when a street serves as a boundary between Omaha and an outside county, the city and county shall have concurrent and joint jurisdiction over the street for enforcement and maintenance purposes Harrison Street, separating Omaha and Sarpy County, was cited as an example.

Hearing Is Set On Reductions Of Ag Programs

By United Press International

After a long discussion, Nebraska lawmakers Wednesday finally agreed to have a public hearing on a resolution expressing "deep concern and fear for the devastating effect" elimination or reduction of federal agricultural programs would have on the state and national economy.

Debate started when Sen. Dennis L. Rasmussen of Scotia, the sponsor, moved for suspension of the rules and immediate adoption of his proposal.

Quite a few of his colleagues said they lacked sufficient facts to proceed immediately and others said the resolution very probably would be strengthened if more data were compiled.

Burbach's Motion

It was Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton who asked to send the matter to a committee "because we need more information than we have now." And he said he would like whatever is forwarded to the President and members of the state's congressional delegation to have close to unanimous unicameral support.

His motion carried 33-3.

The resolution, directed to the President and Nebraska senators and representatives, said Nebraska recognizes agriculture is the "keystone of the economic life and well being of the nation."

Rasmussen specifically mentioned federal government cutbacks in the rural environmental assistance, Administration and Rural Electrification Administration programs.

As submitted, the resolution would have the state's congressional delegation formally advised that it is the Legislature's desire that every effort be made to have these programs restored with utmost dispatch, possibly financed by the millions that will be saved when the Vietnam War is terminated.

Sen. Dennis Rasmussen

It also urges the delegation to immediately join forces with other farm state congressmen in a "united effort to restore these programs and prevent further erosion of the agricultural economy."

Against Immediate Action
One of these speaking against immediate adoption was Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice who said he was "seriously doubtful this resolution states accurate facts." He said he knew nothing about any plans for "emasculating" of irrigation and water conservation practices and policies alluded to in the resolution.

Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove said having the resolution go through a committee would delay getting the Legislature's sentiments to Washington. He said he had been advised that Senate committees are to take up consideration of agricultural programs the first part of next month.

Rasmussen, after the question had been thoroughly discussed, agreed with Burbach's move to get the resolution to a committee for a public hearing, which Burbach said should be expedited.

Anti-Discrimination Teeth Rejected

By United Press International

The Legislature's Labor Committee refused Wednesday to put some enforcement teeth in Nebraska's anti-discrimination laws governing freedom of access to facilities offering food, shelter, recreation or amusement.

The refusal came in the form of a 5-1 vote by the committee to kill LB112, which would have allowed the State Equal Opportunity Commission to take legal action against law violators.

The action came despite the lack of opposition to the bill during the public hearing.

As the law now stands, according to Reid Devoe, director of the Equal Opportunity Commission, there is no bite.

"If we can get voluntary compliance, that's fine," he said. "But if they refuse to comply, there's nothing we can do except go home."

The bill motion was offered by Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island. Voting on support were Sens. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove, Richard Maresh of Milligan, Otto Kime Valentine and James Dickinson of rural Omaha.

The only senator voting against the bill motion was Sen. John J. Cavanaugh of Omaha.

Kelly said he felt the bill was drafted by the Equal Opportunity Commission for its own benefit "and any benefit to the general public would be incidental."

In other action, the committee advanced LB35, which would provide for mandatory unemployment insurance and associated benefits for all state employees.

The public hearing on the bill was held last week and initially drew stiff opposition from cities and counties.

As the bill was originally drafted, it would have required counties and cities to provide such benefits. But it was advanced to the floor in an amended form which left the matter up to the city or county to decide for itself while making it mandatory only for the state.

Also advanced was a bill, LB150, designed to clear up jurisdictional questions surrounding workmen's compensation cases whereby a person was killed or injured in a state other than the one representing his base of operations.

Combined Inspection Plan Nets Opposition

By United Press International

A two-hour parade of witnesses appeared before the Legislature's Public Works Committee Wednesday in opposition to a bill calling for the creation of a combined state inspection service.

The committee, however, adjourned without taking action on LB50, the product of an interim study committee.

Opponents to the bill threatened that its adoption by the Legislature would result in anything from a cut in services to losses in terms of federal funds.

Dr. Henry Smith, director of the State Health Department, told the committee a combined inspection agency "would jeopardize our compliance with medicare" regulations.

Glenn Kreuscher, state agriculture director, said its adoption would weaken the related education services now offered as well as hinder the overall effectiveness of the agencies involved.

Specifically, the bill calls for a state department of inspections which would perform inspection functions for the State Agriculture Department, the Health Department, Welfare Department and the State Fire Marshal's office.

Schmit To Be On Gasohol Search Unit

By United Press International

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said Wednesday he has agreed to serve as a member of a search committee to find a new director for the state's so-called "Gasohol Committee."

The request, Schmit said, came from the committee members and follows a successful move on the senator's part earlier this week to force the issue.

During Monday's session on the Legislature, Schmit successfully amended out of a deficiency appropriation bill a sum of about $9,000 to continue the employment of Ray Ratliff as director of the research unit.

Schmit said at the time he had nothing against Ratliff personally, but the Gasohol Committee was not getting its work done and needed a person in charge who had a technical background.

Mandatory Exemption Check Nixed

By a vote of 6-2 the Revenue

Committee Wednesday killed LB18 calling for a mandatory review by the state tax commissioner of personal property tax exemptions granted by county boards of equalization.

Before the vote, Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca said the county boards are "very capable of handling this, even though there may be inequities."

Under the bill, the tax commissioner would also have been empowered to reverse county board decisions.

The committee unanimously approved LB19. As amended, it sets up six districts of counties and provides that there shall be one county commissioner and one county assessor from each of the districts to make up a 12-member advisory committee.

Advanced 7-1 was LB132. As revised it provides that a 3% fee be returned by the state revenue department for the collection of central assessed property. The 3% would generate about $64,000 annually for a revolving fund used by the advisory committee created in LB19.

Legislature Gets Its Fourth State School Aid Bill

The Legislature received its fourth state aid to education bill Wednesday, a proposal by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh to increase the amounts of aid for each student.

Still to come are at least two more state aid bills including one from Gov. J. J. Exon and another from Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

According to DeCamp's LB287, payments to districts from the school foundation and equalization fund would be increased from $225 to $370 for kindergarten pupils, $450 to $700 for students in grades one through six, $500 to $650 for students in grades seven and eight, and $550 to $800 for students in grades nine through 12.

DeCamp said he would offer amendments later to provide direct property tax relief and write into law a bid on the amount of increases which would be permitted in district budgets.

"This bill is designed to give the massive and substantial aid needed," DeCamp said.

Warner had earlier announced his committee will give public hearing to all the state aid bills Feb. 26 and 27.

Abortion Bill Is Introduced

An abortion bill which, among other things, requires a husband's consent before his wife can terminate a pregnancy, was introduced in the legislature Wednesday as proposed by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh.

The measure will be known as LB256.

Currently the Nebraska law permits abortions only to save the mother's life, but the Nebraska law is similar to a Texas statute struck down by the high court's decision which said "that states could not control a decision to have an abortion within the first six months of pregnancy, except for medical reasons."

State Lottery Bill Introduced

The Legislature Wednesday was asked to establish a state lottery in Nebraska to raise money for prison reform.

The proposal was made by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh in LB288, a measure similar to DeCamp's lottery bill in the 1972 session which was killed by a unicameral committee.

DeCamp predicted his proposal would raise $15 million annually and would "cut into illegal gambling."

Goodwill Notes Achievement In All Operational Areas

Lincoln Goodwill Industries Inc. noted achievement and improvements in all operational areas in 1972, according to the 40th annual report issued Wednesday by John P. Gedwillo, executive director.

"The best yardstick for evaluating the program's growth is the service rendered to the handicapped," Gedwillo said.

Goodwill attained employment for 93 persons last year, not including those served by the rehabilitation division. Their wages totaled $120,145, a 3% increase over 1971, he said.

The organization posted a gain in all sales departments, with the highest percentage in rack and bin goods from the textile department. Gedwillo said furniture sales were more consistent in 1972.

He said all three stores in Lincoln showed an increase, with total sales showing a gain of $15,666 over 1971. Total sales for all stores averaged $559 daily compared to $509 in 1971.

Gedwillo reported store improvements in 1972 included doubling and painting all racks and attaching new signs to them. One of the greatest improvements, he said, was the new entrance door in the 1717 O St. store.

Production increased by 17% owing to a similar increase in contributed material. Gedwillo said.

Improvements made to comply with Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) requirements included building first aid and rest areas, installing $4,500 worth of safety equipment in elevators, meeting fire extinguisher guidelines and improving electrical wiring in nearly every department.

Gedwillo also reviewed Goodwill's rehabilitation services in 1972, comparing achievements with standards set down by the Health, Education and Welfare Dept. of such programs.

Goodwill has been working to meet performance criteria by the end of 1974 to become eligible for federal funding in 1975, Gedwillo said.

Adoption of a line-staff organizational policy to develop staff awareness of problems in production, sales and rehabilitation services, and the interrelated goal of a rehabilitating handicapped persons of all disabilities represented Goodwill's biggest achievement, Gedwillo said.

He reported rehabilitation services handled 183 individual clients in 1972 and placed 97 of them in employment. Their expendable income, Gedwillo said, was $360,600.

"Our goal in the welfare recipients program was to take 80 recipients into the evaluation process and place 40 in employment," he said. A total of 72 entered the program, and 43 were placed on jobs with 35 remaining in jobs for 60 days or longer, according to the report.

Although Goodwill had a 75% training facilities utilization with a 100% goal, the organization developed a branch systems approach for individual clients. The system, Gedwillo said, "can be computerized to accommodate thousands of variables we must effectively work within the individual work personality," with stress on accountability.

New board members elected

Wednesday morning include Alice Abel, Dean Axthelm, Rev. Donald Bredthauer, Murrell B. McNeil and Howard A. Stotts.

Holdover board members are Richard A. Hassel, Robert W. Lewis, Charles A. Piper, Dale Janssen and Leslie E. Bailey.

Goodwill Officers for 1973 are Robert R. Gibson, president, succeeding William D. Lutes; Clancy Woolman, vice president; Bernard J. Kouma, treasurer, and Mrs. Kenneth McCaw, secretary.

Court Remodeling Set To Get Underway Soon

Remodeling deemed necessary for Lancaster County Court due to the additional judge and new small claims division of the court is expected to get underway soon as a result of action by the County-City Building Committee Wednesday.

The committee authorized Building Superintendent Henry Lorenz to proceed with cutting a doorway from the court offices into a office which is now a part of the county commissioners suite of offices for office space for Judge Jeffre Cheuvront.

It also authorized Lorenz to cut another doorway from the area to be used for small claims into the vault within the county court offices. Lorenz was also directed to give the committee an estimate within two weeks on the cost for his staff to do the other necessary remodeling which includes adding a counter and shelves for the small claims court and moving a rail and adding two more rows of seats in the County Court chamber.

Committee members indicated that they felt the estimate of $3,365 quoted by a local contractor to Architect Robert Dawson was too high for the amount of work involved.

The committee which is now made up of all three county commissioners, two City Council members and the mayor, named Councilman Steve Cook as chairman and agreed to meet to set up rules and regulations governing the committee actions.

It was also suggested that the building committee be empowered to be in control of all maintenance of the building.

The parking situation which has been of considerable concern to various new county officials was mentioned but it was agreed that the committee should look at a long-range parking plan and investigate possibilities of closing H Street south of the County-City Building and extending the parking across the street and into the south lot which is now rock.

City Hospitals Well Below Maximum Occupancy Rates

All four Lincoln hospitals reported Wednesday they are running well below maximum occupancy rates, although the in-patient count has risen in the past two weeks owing to individuals postponing operations until after the holidays.

Bryan Memorial Hospital is "running about 85% capacity," which is slightly higher than normal for a typical January, said Jim Gember, Bryan information director.

He attributed the increase to "people who have waited beyond the holidays to have their operations." Gember said Bryan has admitted many youngsters with upper respiratory diseases, but noted "We haven't received that much hospitalization for the flu."

At Lincoln General, information director Ken Stevens said in the medical-surgical unit, "We're running probably about 95% capacity" with overall bed occupancy at 85%.

Stevens said the January increase is normal and not owing to influenza or "any other thing."

Stuart Erickson, community relations director for St. Elizabeth Community Health Center, said that as of Wednesday, the center was 81% full.

St. Elizabeth projected for a January increase, Erickson said, and noted a peak on Jan. 10, when occupancy hit 89%. Should there be increased demand, Erickson said "There's bed availability."

Providence Hospital has "been making considerable efforts in the last few months to increase our occupancy," said Tom Bowen, Providence administrator. "We're presently running about 55.2% occupancy" with 69 of 125 beds filled.

Bowen said Providence's goal is to reach 80% occupancy.

13 Omaha Area Hospitals Operating At Near Capacity

Omaha (AP)—A telephone survey by the Greater Omaha Hospital Public Relations Association indicates that many of the 13 area hospitals have been operating at or near capacity since Jan. 10.

Ralph Cenny, University Hospital associate administrator, attributed the situation to "a combination of seasonal health problems such as pneumonia and people who waited with elective surgery until after the holiday season."

Mercy Hospital in Council Bluffs, Iowa, opened a previously-unused 20-bed unit to meet the rising demand.

Bergan Mercy Hospital in Omaha reported it has used some teen-age pediatric beds for adults, while Nebraska Methodist Hospital said it has transferred non-acute patients to the Eugene C. Eppley Complex.

Several hospitals indicated they are using a waiting list to insure admittance.

"Critical health problems such as emergencies will receive priority attention. No one in immediate need of medical care should fear not being able to obtain a hospital bed," said Ed Linn, administrator of Jennie Edmundson Hospital in Council Bluffs.

Sellman Moving To Chadron

Albuquerque, N.M. (AP)—The Sellman Brothers Ranch plans to shift its operation to Chadron, Neb., following a three-ranch exchange that transferred ownership of the Marshall Sellman Ranch at Watrous, N.M., to an Arizona firm.

The exchange, reportedly involving more than $2 million, was reported in Albuquerque by realtor Stan Stuts of Brown Realty Co.

Stuts said the Sellman Ranch now is the property of

M. M. Larson & Sons of Sanford, Ariz.

In return, Stuts said, Larson & Sons traded its interest in a Colorado Springs, Colo., ranch to Reata Land & Cattle Co. of Colorado Springs.

Dick Sellman, a Sellman Brothers Ranch partner, plans to continue his registered Hereford cattle operation on part of the original Watrous Ranch. Tom Sellman and Marshall Sellman Jr. will move their Herefords to the Nebraska ranch formerly owned by Verne Chicoine.

Counting Horses?

Ever fall asleep counting horses scampering around the race track?

Perhaps not, but soon a group of racing officials will begin the endless task of viewing the films of every exacta horse race held in Nebraska during 1971 and 1972. The purpose will be to determine if there are irregularities in the exacta (where bettors must correctly pick the first and second finishers) and if there are "sbody" events, how they can be eliminated.

"I think our approach will be a positive one," says Harry Farnham, chairman of the Nebraska State Racing Commission. "We're taking the idea that we can control them and I'm sure we can."

"But it's (exacta wagering) one of those things you have to talk about. It's something you can't get lax on," he adds. "You have to let everybody know that you won't stand for anything off-color and that you will get tough if you find anything that's wrong."

At the Commission's October (1972) meeting, Farnham ordered the review of every exacta race after scandals of "irregularities" rocked the racing world. Illinois, where many fixing charges occurred, ordered a halt to all exotic wagering forms despite outcries from the tracks when their mutual handles took a drastic nosedive.

Farnham said a racing official from "a state further east than Illinois" and perhaps another eastern racing official would review the films in Omaha with Nebraska stewards Irv Anderson and Jack Fickler in about 10 days to two weeks.

Key Areas Of Scrutiny

"We're going to carefully check things such as pace, unusual betting patterns, horses running in different manners than they usually do and unusual bunching of horses," Farnham said. "It'll take about a week to complete the work."

Farnham said he has completed most of the preliminary work and has discussed the matter with between 25 and 30 officials over the past two months. He adds that he has conversed with chairmen from two racing commissions this week.

"We're doing quite a bit of work contacting other states to see what they've done about exotic wagering," he says. "We're trying to avail ourselves to how other commissions have handled this area."

"If nothing else you always hear disgruntled bettors talking a lot about exactas and it alerts you," he says. "We made up our minds before it (exacta betting) went another year that we would look at it and that's exactly what we're going to do."

Lincoln Racing

While discussing exactas, Farnham also praised the efforts of State Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt and his staff for last summer's Lincoln meet which shattered all previous attendance and mutual marks.

"Henry does a remarkable job conducting a meet with the facilities he has," Farnham notes. "Lincoln has an excellent time for holding its meet (immediately following Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha) and it's ideally situated to draw from eastern Nebraska."

"I don't think there's any doubt with decent facilities that Lincoln would average $500,000 (in daily mutual handle) and well over half the fans would be from other states."

Racing fans take heart—the opening day of the 178-day Nebraska season is five weeks from Friday when Grand Island's Fanner Park opens its 40-day meeting.

Spahn Only Electee To Baseball's Hall Of Fame

... WINNINGEST LEFTHANDED PITCHER FORCED TO WAIT EXTRA TWO YEARS

NEW YORK (UPI) — High-kicking Warren Spahn, who loved pitching so much he was willing to wait an extra two years to become eligible for baseball's Hall of Fame, stood alone Wednesday as the only electee of the Baseball Writers Association of America this year in the Cooperstown, N.Y. shrine.

Spahn, baseball's winningest lefthander with 363 victories, was forced to wait two extra years (in addition to the mandatory five) for Hall of Fame eligibility because of his refusal to quit pitching after 20 years in the majors mostly with the Boston-Milwaukee Braves.

Named on 316 of the 380 ballots cast by the writers, Spahn had no regrets about his long wait because of a brief stint in the minor leagues at the age of 45.

"I'd have waited 10 years," Spahn joked while explaining the controversy which delayed his enshrinement. "In 1966, I agreed to go to Mexico City as a pitching coach for the team there and they asked me one day to pitch against a team managed by Bobby Avila, an old teammate of mine. I wasn't under contract, but I loved the competition so much, I agreed willingly.

"Then the next year, while coaching with the Tulsa Oilers in the American Association, they thought it would be a good promotion if I pitched again and once more, I was delighted for the chance.

"But I have no regrets," Spahn added after becoming only the sixth man in history to make the Hall of Fame on the first year of eligibility. "I'm instead delighted that the rules are so stringent—because that's why it's such an honor for any player to get in."

While Spahn, who easily surpassed the required 254 votes or 75 per cent needed for election, lauded the stringent Hall of Fame rules, there were no doubt others who were

'Incohesive' Huskers Battle Missouri

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Although plagued with its season-long nemesis of incohesiveness, Nebraska's basketball team drew praise from coach Joe Cipriano for its defensive work.

"We have the makings of the best defensive team in the conference," the NU coach said at Wednesday's press briefing. "We haven't relied on the zone and against everybody we've played we've used basically a man-to-man. It's the second shots that killed us."

The league statistics prove Cipriano correct. Through 14 games, NU has allowed an average of 66.4 points-per-game—the best mark in the Big Eight Conference. In comparison, last season, the Huskers permitted 66.6 points, which trailed only champion Kansas State's 63.6 average.

Faced with meeting nationally-rated Missouri (seventh in The Associated Press poll and tied for 11th in the United Press International rankings) Saturday, Cipriano said the Huskers are still attempting to develop into a cohesive unit.

"We've got to get into the habit of playing together as a team," he lamented. "We haven't been worrying about anything else. If we can do that, then everything else will come, but we've got to figure out how to play at both ends of the court."

After winning the Big Eight Tournament in Kansas City in late December, Missouri appeared to be the team to beat. But consecutive losses at Kansas State and at home against a lightly-regarded Colorado club before a victory over Kansas put the Tigers at 1-2 in league action and 13-2 overall.

And that changes the Big Eight picture, in Cipriano's opinion.

"The winner could very easily have four losses," he said. "I wouldn't have predicted that before but a lot of things can happen.

"It looks like it's going to be tough to win at Oklahoma and Kansas State and Iowa State isn't going to be easy either. Colorado is improved especially at home."

Reflecting on last Monday's 74-67 victory at the NU Coliseum over Oklahoma, Cipriano noted that the 12-day layoff may help his club in the 12:40 p.m. tipoff affair against coach Norm Stewart's Tigers.

"I don't think the layoff will hurt us... we've had some good practices so far," he said. And I think an effort similar to what we had against Oklahoma would beat anyone at home."

With senior starting guard Tom Gregory lost for the remainder of the season with scholastic difficulties, Cipriano is still searching for a replacement.

He has narrowed Gregory's replacement to either senior Tony Riehl (who started the first few games of the season), freshman Ricky Marsh (who has appeared capable of starting), Kent Reckewey or Tom Novak, both of whom have been slowed by ankle injuries.

"I really don't know who we're going to start yet," Cipriano said. "But we hope whoever it is will give us some scoring punch."

HILL SCORES TKO WIN

Griffin Moves To Semifinals

... SE GOLDEN GLOVES BEGINS

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Former Midwest Golden Gloves champion Dave Hill took a giant step towards regaining his Southeast District crown Wednesday night at Pershing Auditorium by scoring a TKO victory over Mike Rowe of Easterday Boxing Club.

Hill, fighting unattached at 175 pounds, opened a cut over Rowe's left eye early in the second round, forcing referee Larry Emory to step in and stop the match with only 54 seconds gone. But until that point, the fight could have gone either way.

Rowe, a self-declared puncher at 176, bullied Hill against the ropes repeatedly in the first round while trying to score with his right only to find Hill slipping away from him and landing numerous combinations in the bargain.

Towards the end of the initial round, Hill bloodied Rowe's nose, but both were on their feet slugging it out as the bell sounded.

Then in the second, Hill went to work with a left and two quick rights to open the cut over Rowe's eye before an estimated crowd of 800.

But Hill wasn't the only champion to advance to the semifinals Thursday night. Dan Griffin, 174, of Fairbury, fighting in the same class as Hill, had little trouble in earning a decision over Russ Blank, 175, S & D Cycle, to advance to the semifinals where he will meet Wayne Wilson, 170, also from S & D.

Griffin, who's known for his knockout ability, was content to box with Blank but unleashed several barrages to drive Blank back each time he tried to come in.

Brawling Neil Weillhelm, 124, Easterday, the defending District champion, demolished Fairbury's Dan Peppercorn in gaining the decision.

The Reformatory's Ken Kelley was forced to withdraw from contention at the end of the second round with a leg cramp moving S&D Cycle's Charles Way, 147, to the semifinals.

A rabbit punch cost Wayne Hawkins, 232, Fairbury, the third round, but he still won a decision over Walt Bray, 207, Reformatory, despite the decision of the referee to deduct that round from his card.

The only title decided Wednesday night was the 119-pound division which went to unopposed Denny Sterva, 116, Reformatory.

Semifinal action in the Southeast District Golden Gloves tournament will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday with championship bouts scheduled immediately after.

Knox Replaces Prothro

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Robert "Chuck" Knox, a young football coach, assistant with 10 years' experience in the professional ranks, took over as head man of the Los Angeles Rams Wednesday and promised to use "hard work and discipline" to get a winning team.

Knox, 40, who built the line that protected quarterback Joe

Chuck Knox

Namath with the New York Jets, replaces Tommy Prothro, who had three years to go on his five-year contract.

Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom said Prothro would be paid off on his contract but denied that the figure was $90,000 a year.

Knox will have a three-year contract at undisclosed terms.

Both the owner and the new coach exchanged compliments at a Beverly Hills hotel news conference.

Knox said he will start to select his assistants on Thursday, and also review films of the Rams games last season.

He said that he did not think he would be playing "a large role" in the upcoming draft of college players because in his job with the Detroit Lions last season he did not scout college games.

He called Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel "a fine player" but he and Rosenbloom said the Rams are interested in acquiring another experienced man at the position. They said John Hadl of the San Diego Chargers is a prospect but indicated the asking price for Hadl may be too high.

On his own football philosophy, Knox said, "I believe you must coach with enthusiasm. I think the players are going to reflect that. I don't believe you coach walking around with your hands in your pockets. I believe the head coach must be motivated and that will motivate the players."

"I want to get a winning edge which means you must outwork other people in terms of dedication, hard work, and preparation. I believe in discipline and a curfew for players."

Prothro was criticized in many quarters for his static attitude toward the game and his unemotional approach.

Knox served as assistant offensive line coach with the Detroit Lions for six years through last season under Joe Schmidt. Before that, he was an assistant for four years to Webb Squire with the Jets.

HQ Move To Lincoln Possible

Lincoln may become the operating headquarters of National Speedway, Inc. with election of Lincolns to the corporation's top offices.

Gene Van Winkle was recently elected president of National Speedway after serving several years as vice-president. Woody Brinkman, formerly the sorer, is now the vice-president, and his wife, Betty, is treasurer.

Secretary is Bill Hitz of Des Moines.

Long-time head of National Speedway, Al Sweeney of Tampa, Fla., is chairman of the board, stepping out of active management after 31 years.

The corporation is the promoter of auto racing at the Nebraska State Fair and similar events in 16 other states.

"We are seriously thinking about moving the headquarters of the business to Lincoln from when contested at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Board of Agriculture."

State Fair manager Henry Brandt has been elected to the Board of Directors of the International Motor Car Association.

The nation's oldest and largest auto race sanctioning body, the IMCA sanctions the Nebraska State Fair's spring car race program.

TRA President Brock Opposes OTB System

AK-SAR-BEN OFFICIAL CAUTIOUS

Los Angeles (AP) — Legislation of a dozen states have taken cautious approaches to off-track betting, one of its leading critics said Wednesday.

"Perhaps the most complex and distressing item facing all of racing is off-track betting," Brock said.

Brock, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations, told the association's convention here.

"As might have been expected," he said, "the legalization of off-track betting in New York in 1971 proved an inspiration to other states."

Fortunately for racing in other states, their legislative bodies are taking a good hard look at the New York OTB operation which in 1972 cost the state an estimated $14 million in revenue they would ordinarily have received," Brock said.

He said the TRA recently asked member tracks to provide information on any off-track betting legislation in the 19 states and the four Canadian provinces in which the tracks operate.

"Six states had introduced OTB legislation which was killed in Florida and Michigan and which has been referred to committees in Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

"Six other states have authorized commissions to make a feasibility study of off-track betting. These are California, Kentucky, Mary land, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Washington.

"It is interesting but not encouraging to note that one state, Connecticut, which does not have a race track, has legalized off-track betting and plans betting rooms equipped with television and bar. Their plan is to borrow the racing from other states for their medium.

"In Canada," Brock went on, "legislation has been introduced which will allow provinces to set up their own off-track betting systems. Approval of this bill is expected and enabling legislation is being readied for introduction in Ontario."

Brock is the general manager of Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha

Nebraska Gymnasts To Test Colorado

After more than a month off, coach Francis Allen's University of Nebraska gymnastics team opens its dual season Saturday afternoon at Colorado.

The last time out for most of the squad was the Iowa Open on Dec. 9, while a few members of the team competed in the East-West All-Star Meet in Tucson, Dec. 26.

Despite the layoff, Allen thinks his team will be ready for the dual opener. "We'll be a little rusty," he says, "but we've been working hard since the holidays and I think we'll be in pretty good shape."

"The whole team is in good shape except for Gene Mackie who broke his arm before the East-West All-Star meet last month," Allen continues.

"Gene's supposed to get his cast off Wednesday and he may be back for the Big Eight. If he is, we'll be okay."

"If he's not, we might be in bad shape because he's our top point-getter and if he's in there, it helps the other kids concentrate on their routines."

Mackie, a sophomore from Omaha, finished fifth in the all-around competition at the Big Eight meet last year.

Last year in Lincoln, the Huskers beat the Buffs easily, 152.45-122.95. Allen says he expects the Huskers to win Saturday, but he expects the CU program to grow rapidly in the new few years under now coach Dave Wardell, who coached at Kansas State the past few years.

"Wardell is really a hustler," Allen says. "He went to K-State and took them from the bottom to near the top."

"I give him another two years at Colorado and he'll really be tough. Colorado is at the bottom of the league now, but they used to be tops."

Borgialli's Wrestlers Fashion Rally

Coach Orval Borgialli's University of Nebraska wrestling finally got back on track last weekend after dropping their first five dual matches.

Despite giving up six points automatically in each match for not having an entry at 118 pounds, the Huskers swamped Fort Hays State, 31-9, in Lincoln Friday night, came back the next night and pressed powerful South Dakota State before losing, 23-20, at the Coliseum, then downed a strong Kansas State team, 25-

18, at Manhattan, Tuesday night.

The Husker grapplers now 2-6, will be back in action in the Coliseum, Saturday night, against the University of South Dakota.

With four duals left before the Big Eight meet, Borgialli faces the problem of finding a 118-pounder and another heavyweight so he can move John Bell back to his normal 190-pound weight class.

So far, he hasn't located anyone at 118, but Husker gridders Jerry Lloyd and Chad Leonardi are vying for the heavyweight spot. "Hopefully, one of them (Lloyd or Leonardi) will get in good enough wrestling shape so they can fill the spot," Borgialli says.

Bright spots for Borgialli in a 2-6 year have been the performances of three freshmen Dennis Girard of Alliance, Bob Johnson of Gordon, and Cliff Myles of Avon, Ohio.

"Our freshman—it's unbelievable how well they've done," Borgialli says. "I'm real, real happy with them, especially Girard and Johnson. They have the kind of attitude a coach loves. They both go out on the mat with the idea of pinning their man and they usually accomplish it."

"We can't leave Cliff Myles off that list, either. He's just a freshman, too, but he's 105-2. Those darn freshmen are holding our team up."

Devaney For Change

Appleton, Wis. (AP) — The national collegiate champion likely would offer better competition to the National Football League champion than a team of college All-Stars, former Nebraska coach Bob Devaney said Tuesday night.

Devaney, whose Nebraska teams won two national titles, suggested the change in the format of the annual College All-Star game in an interview before the eighth Red Smith sports awards banquet.

The Devaney-coached Stars lost to the Dallas Cowboys 17-0 last July.

"The only way the College All-Star team has a chance to beat the pro champions under the present setup is when the All-Stars play almost error-free football and the pros have an off game," Devaney said.

"You've got to have a team that has played together to stand a chance against a pro team," he said.

"So why not take the national champion with its graduating seniors and entire coaching staff?"

"That would pit the best college team against the best pro team and it would be an interesting match," he said in an interview with the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"If you had your own college team you wouldn't get beat by mistakes," he said. "That's what killed the All-Stars against the Cowboys."

Devaney, who stepped down as Nebraska coach, said he plans to stay on as athletic director rather than coach in the NFL.

"I've talked to a few NFL teams, but mostly in generalities," he said.

"I'm not convinced that I'm serious enough about wanting to coach in professional football."

Devaney said halfback Johnny Rodgers, his 170-pound Heisman Trophy winner, was "the greatest football player I ever coached" and predicted he will be taken high in next week's NFL draft.
